Another Hike In Social Security Taxes On Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security will take a bigger bite from workers' paychecks in 1977 if a proposal by President Ford is approved by Congress. And, congressional approval seems likely.

Ford will ask the Congress in his budget message next Wednesday to increase the Social Security tax rate from 5.85 per cent to 6.15 per cent, effective Jan. 1, 1977.

That would mean that a worker would pay $6.15 out of each $100 he earns for Social Security compared to $5.85 this year. The worker's payment would be matched by his or her employer.

Ford's budget also will include an increase in the defense budget, an expected tax decrease and a provision requiring Medicare patients to pay more of their own bills.

The Social Security tax payments would be made on about the first $16,500 of income, so that the maximum deduction from any American worker's paycheck during 1977 would be $1,014, up from the maximum of $896 on income up to $15,300 this year.

The wage base would not be affected by Ford's proposal — but the base rises automatically each year anyway since it is linked to changes in average national wage rates.

Ford, however, plans to tell Congress he will not oppose this year — as he did in 1974 and 1975 — full cost of living increases for recipients of Social Security and other federal retirement programs.

The last increase in the Social Security tax rate was from 5.2 to 5.85 per cent in 1973, which coincided with the provision for automatic cost-of-living increases of 20 per cent for recipients.

Since Social Security became law during the Depression, the tax rate has been increased 12 times, rising from 1 per cent to the current 5.85 per cent. The wage base has been raised 10 times from $3,000 in 1937 to the current $15,300.

In general, benefits have increased in election years and taxes have increased afterward.

Ford will tell Congress he knows the increase in the tax rate will be controversial, but he will contend it is needed because the trust fund from which Social Security payments are made is being depleted.

Congress is likely to give the proposal favorable consideration since some leading Democrats already have indicated they favor an increase.

Last year, the Social Security Advisory Committee and the Social Security trustees, who include Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, had recommended early action to halt the decrease in the trust fund, either by raising the tax rate or increasing the wage base.

It is estimated the increase proposed by Ford will raise an additional $4.2 billion for the fund in 1977.

Basically, the problem has been that payments to the fund from employees and employers have fallen short of the claims on the fund from retired persons entitled to receive benefits.

Telephone Line Thread Of Life For Ailing Tot

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Thanks to Jan Haley, a radio operator at the Genesee County police communications center, 4½-year-old Christopher Robb is alive today.

Miss Haley carefully guided the boy's grandparents through a course on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation Wednesday night after they called to report young Christopher had stopped breathing.

"Please tell me what to do. My grandson is going into convulsions," pleaded Mrs. Edward Horton, of Burton, a Flint suburb, over the telephone.

She said her grandson was not breathing, that his lips were turning blue — and that she did not know the life-saving technique.

While another operator sent an ambulance on its way, Miss Haley successfully taught the Hortons how to save a life when the circumstances made it crucial.

"Thank God for that woman," said Mrs. Horton of Miss Haley. "I firmly believe if she had not talked us through, my grandson would not be here."

Christopher who lives with his mother, Mrs. Bonita Robb, and the Hortons, apparently stopped breathing due to an attack of bronchitis.

Miss Haley, 23, has been a radio operator at the communications center since it opened two years ago. She says she would like to follow in her father's steps and become a police officer.

State Employee Union Seeking Bargaining Rights

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A public employee union has launched a petition drive to give state workers collective bargaining rights and remove them from the control of a state commission.

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) is seeking some 300,000 signatures needed to put its proposed constitutional amendment on the November ballot.

The union wants to eliminate the constitutional authority of the Civil Service Commission to set working conditions and wages for about 57,000 state employees.

About 200 AFSCME members rallied here Friday to launch the drive. Spokesmen said they planned to submit at least 350,000 signatures to the secretary of state's office by the July 5 deadline.

The constitutional amendment would place state employees under the Public Employees Relations Act and give them the power to petition for bargaining units. It also would give employees broad protection against discrimination.

A proposal before the Civil Service Commission would allow collective bargaining with units organized along occupational lines.

This, said AFSCME director Walter Oliver, would make organizing "a never-ending difficulty, from the Ohio border to Copper Harbor," because state employees are spread throughout the state.

"It is clear that the state, in proposing these units, is seeking to make its job easier and cut down the bargaining negotiations to the fewest number possible," Oliver said.

At a commission meeting earlier Friday, Department of Social Services employee Tom Supra called the two commissioners present "crowned ruffians" with autocratic rule over state employees.

Because two commissioners were not at the meeting, the question of whether to adopt the collective bargaining proposal was postponed until the panel's Feb. 20 meeting.

Regardless of the commission's action on collective bargaining, the union will continue its petition drive because state employees would "have no security that the plan would be a lasting thing," Oliver said.

Corn For Poland Is A 'Pile Of Garbage'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is investigating the misgrading of a $4 million corn shipment loaded aboard a Polish supertanker in New Orleans that Sen. Dick Clark says is contaminated with large amounts of rocks, seashells and 10,000 cubic feet of corn dust.

The 3.2 million-bushel shipment had been destined for Poland before federal supervisors and Senate Agriculture Committee investigators discovered the misgrading, the chief of the Agriculture Department's grain division confirmed Friday night.

Clark, D-Iowa, said the presence of substantial amounts of foreign material was evidence of "willful" misgrading of the shipment.

Agriculture Department investigators were enroute to New Orleans on Friday night to launch their inquiry into the incident.

A spokesman for Clark, who is a member of two Senate committees investigating grain inspection and export marketing, said the grading could not have been a mistake.

"Some guy graded it No. 3 yellow," an average grade, "and it's just a 25-foot high pile of garbage," he said. "Unless you're deaf, dumb and blind, that is substantial evidence of misgrading."

Export grain shipments are inspected by employees of private firms, operating under Agriculture Department licensing and supervision.

Under the Grain Standards Act, all grain destined for foreign buyers must be inspected. Intentional misgrading is illegal.

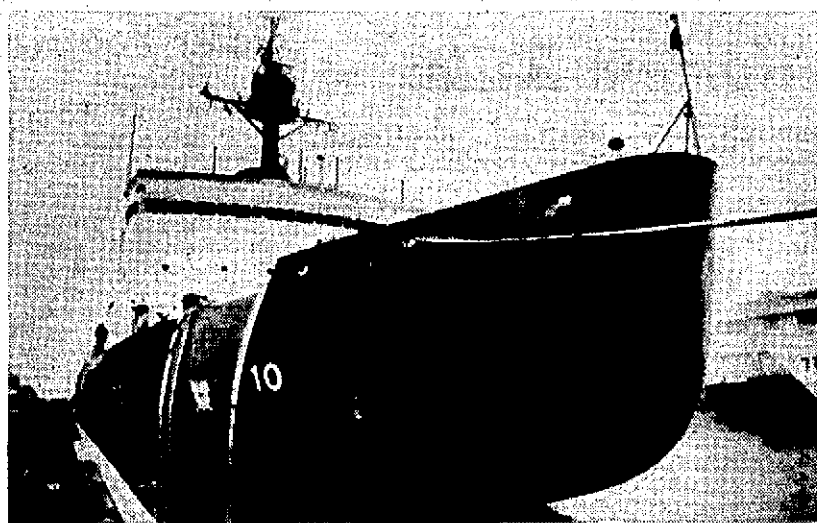

Several dozen inspectors and grain company officials have been indicted in the course of a two-year investigation of the grain export industry.

They have been charged with misgrading, short-weighting and theft of grain at New Orleans, the nation's largest grain exporting city, and other ports.

The grain was sold to Poland by Cook Industries, one of the world's largest grain exporters.

David Galliard, the Agriculture Department grain division chief, said in a telephone interview from Kansas: "We've been working on this for some time. I'm happy that we caught it."

State 'Red Squad' Is Out Of Business

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The State Police "Red Squad" was ordered out of business Friday by an Ingham County Circuit Court judge who called it unconstitutional and ordered its files destroyed.

"The fact that one engages in what we might call different behavior ... perhaps chanting and marches ... for that person to be identified as a possible subversive chills anyone's desire to petition their government for redress of a grievance," Judge Thomas Brown said in his ruling.

Brown's order came on a suit filed by the Human Rights Party.

The files become the property of Brown's court and will be destroyed under the supervision of the court.

But suit provides a 60-day period in which any of the 50,000 persons named in a file can petition Brown requesting him not to destroy the documents so they may see them.

Such requests, Brown said, will have to "have merit." For instance, a motion with merit might be based on a person's claim that he lost a job or was denied admission to a school because of the "Red Squad's" file on him.

The files become the property of Brown's court and will be destroyed under the supervision of the court.

But suit provides a 60-day period in which any of the 50,000 persons named in a file can petition Brown requesting him not to destroy the documents so they may see them.

Such requests, Brown said, will have to "have merit." For instance, a motion with merit might be based on a person's claim that he lost a job or was kept from buying a house, or was denied admission to a school because of the "Red Squad's" file on him.

Pittsburgh Morality Play

The Steelers and their coach, Chuck Noll, unquestionably command more attention in Pittsburgh than anyone else in town, but if one wants to do business in a substantial way it may be more advantageous to know somebody bearing Mellon as a surname.

United States Steel is big in Pittsburgh, so is Heinz Pickles.

So are these crown jewels in the Mellon diadem: Gulf Oil, Aluminum Company of America, Koppers (coke and chemical derivatives from coal), and the Mellon National Bank.

The first Mellon better than a century ago started things off in Pittsburgh's transition from a strategic trading center to an industrial complex.

His son, Andrew William Mellon, who served as Secretary of the Treasury from 1921 to 1932, expanded greatly into his sire's opening ventures and into wider fields.

A nephew, Richard King Mellon, expanded again upon the uncle's initiative.

In the process, starting with Andrew, the Mellon enterprises shifted from purely family to public ownership and as part of that ownership dilution, nonfamily personnel more and more came into the controlling managerial situations.

The King, as RK was referred to back home, was the last Mellon in the top command.

A half dozen fourth generation Mellons continue to own substantial holdings and serve as board members, but they do not actively run the show.

Gulf Oil is an international operator in the petroleum industry.

Recently it came to light that Gulf, along with many other American firms doing a substantial overseas trade, as a matter of routine had made illegal political contributions in U.S. campaigns, mostly for Nixon's 1972 re-election effort, and had failed to disclose to their stockholders bribes to foreign governments to do business within those overseas countries.

The latter is not an offense to American criminal law, but the failure to disclose the bribes violates SEC regulations.

Bob R. Dorsey, Gulf's board chairman and chief executive officer, spun out both types of payments through a Bahamian front office set up over 20 years ago by no less than The King to smooth Gulf's path abroad which at the time was somewhat bumpy.

In a stormy two-day board meeting this week Dorsey and his three top executives lost their jobs because of that activity.

The fourth generation Mellons convinced the big majority on Gulf's directorate that the company should purge itself of sins and sinners.

The prohibition against corporate contributing to domestic political campaigns, an aftermath of the McKinley-Bryan Presidential election in 1896, is so long standing and so firmly entrenched as to be beyond question.

The SEC position on bribing a foreign potentate is something else.

It is a way of life in many lands, just as a salesman in our country often finds it expedient to have his company cross the palm of a customer firm's purchasing agent.

It should not be done. Neither should it be necessary.

But if the condition is not met by one means or another, U.S. trade balances will lose the recovery they have made in the past few years, and lay-offs rather than re-employment will embarrass an underemployed economy at home.

Why an American firm should have to advertise a devious selling technique its foreign competitors are not required to do seems odd, particularly when it benefits the U.S.

The fourth generation Mellons obviously view the practice in a different light.

No complaint was lodged against Dorsey's accomplishments as a manager.

However, considerable verbiage was spilled about not being informed of what was going on.

From this corner it looks as if the younger Mellons picked a scapegoat for their own inattention to their affairs.

It's Season To Guard Against Odorless Killer

Almost daily deaths of motorists attributed to carbon monoxide poisoning are reported — deaths caused by purposeful or accidental breathing of the odorless, tasteless gas.

Suicides can take the exhaust-pipe method at any time of year. But it is the winter season that accounts for most of the accidental deaths. Several hundred persons are asphyxiated every winter when letting their cars warm up in closed garages. It might be thought that after seven decades of the motor age no one would be that ignorant or absent-minded.

How many highway deaths, injuries and wrecked vehicles can be laid to doses of carbon monoxide not fatal in themselves? This gas, seeping into a car from a faulty manifold or muffler, can cause drowsiness resulting in a bad accident. A car parked outdoors with windows closed and engine running, to warm its occupants, can be the end of them without their knowing what happened.

The great danger in this insidious gas is that it gives no warning. It takes a concentration of but one twenty-fifth of one per cent to be fatal to the person who breathes the air — and exhaust gases contain much larger concentrations of carbon monoxide.

There is only one certain way to keep safe: Have plenty of ventilation and keep the car's exhaust system in good repair.

U.S. Population Makeup Changing

As members of the "baby boom" which followed the end of World War II make their way through life's journey, they are managing to create some tall waves. Over the last five years, Census Bureau records show the population of the United States grew by 4.5 percent. But that average tells little about what has been happening within the various age groups in recent years. In the same five-year period, the 25-34 age group expanded by 23 percent, the 18-24 ages grew by 13 percent and the number of people 65 and older increased 12 percent.

The age group 5-13 declined almost 9 percent, while the under-5 group shrank by more than 7 percent. All of which adds up to major changes in the population mix. Overall primary and secondary school enrollment is declining, the college and labor force ages are expanding, as are the elderly.

By way of comparison, the average age in the United States today is 28.8 years.

SNOW IS BEAUTIFUL

Editor,
Wasn't it a beautiful snow? It brings out a warm-hearted spirit unlike anything else. My neighborhood children, Mike and Sarah Jones, and Robin Scheerer, joined me with snow shovels, making a clean entry to our garage. Thanks.

Today, as I traveled to Mercy hospital, many goodwill wishes struck me. The folks on the east side of Union, the 1000 block, had their sidewalks perfectly shoveled, something I've seen often before. I rather suspect it is a one-family venture, as there are tracks of some sort of machine, that must be a special block!

At the corner of McAllister and May, there is a beautifully dressed huge snowman greeting the passer-bys.

BRITISH DECLINE SHOULD BE WARNING

Editor,
"Wake Up America."
I have just read the article in the January issue of Readers Digest, entitled the underdoing of Great Britain, at one time the greatest nation in the world, and that familiar phrase, "the sun never sets on British soil", and today it is a doomed country, and from its own doing, for Britain has not been brought to this state of defeat in war or by any natural disaster. It has been brought on largely by the policies of its own government and the resigned acceptance of the people.

Thus, Britain offers a good study of what can happen to a strong vigorous nation, when people do not take any interest in their government, and you all have at one time or another heard that old phrase, "it can't happen here". Well, I tell you this, it can and it is later than you think, and if the federal, state and local governments, and the people don't wake up, and take more interest in what is going on in this country, and elect more honest energetic politicians to office, and stop this graft and deficit spending, that is taxing the people out of their soil possessions, and the laboring man out of a large slice of his pay check, and stop the chiseling and cheating in the welfare and A.D.C. programs at the taxpayers' expense. And, laborers could put a large dent

And, in the inflation if they stop demanding more wages every time the union contract in all of our industries runs out and they start negotiating for a new contract. Right at the top is a clause for more wages and that is one of the reasons for all off-high prices we are paying for everything we buy, including the high cost of living. They say they have to have more money to keep up. Sure, but when are they going to get smart and wake-up and see the light. Some of the large industries around the country are going under because they can not meet the demands that employees are putting on them.

Chou En-lai, The Devious Mandarin

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Of all the Chinese leaders I have been acquainted with, Chou En-lai was the only one I think it was impossible to know.

Even in the most casual of conversations he seemed to be playing poker — or perhaps, more accurately, bridge — sizing you up, figuring the angles and percentages, using you, I repeatedly felt, for whatever purpose he had in mind. He said the things calculated to get the responses he desired.

One never knew what he really thought, only what he wanted you to think he thought at that particular time.

By contrast, you knew where the other top Communists stood in their capital Yenan in the 1940s. And exactly how they felt. Mao Tse-tung, Peng Teh-hsi, Lin Piao, Chen Yi, Chou Teh, Yeh Chien-ying. You could like them, hate them, or despise them and their thoughts. But you knew what they were. Because they told you in no uncertain terms. Their bluntness made clear how they regarded you and any ideas you might have.

They were blunt. Rough. Strong. Brilliant and singleminded.

In my eight months in Yenan during World War II, the last half of that time as acting commander of the combined U.S. military — diplomatic mission to the Communist capital, I dealt daily with the men who then, and in considerable measure since have ruled mainland China. Some have gone down; others, lower in the pyramid, have come up. The ranks thinned in recent years with deaths and excommunications. But Mao and Chou, Teng and Yeh and a handful of others remained.

Western diplomats, most of whom did not know intimately Chou's background as one-time leader of strong-arm and assassination squads in Shanghai and his opportunistic flips, flops and intrigues against even his close associates within the Communist party, were fascinated by his culture, his grasp of language and diplomacy, his sweet reasonableness with words in a government of men whose language was often rough, abrasive, abusive and extremist. They came, therefore, to think of Chou as a moderate, friendly pragmatist, not caught up in the fanaticism which seemed to surround him.

To give Chou his due, for all his ruthlessness and his devious ways, he was an intellectual, a Mandarin, whose extended studies, and cultured manner would make him a standout in any social or diplomatic gathering. And he had an appreciation of beauty and form in living and dress even in the caves of Yenan, which were in deep contrast to that of most of his peers in the party leadership.

He was not one who seemed to enjoy the somewhat free-wheeling regular Saturday evening barn dances in Yenan indulged in with obvious enjoyment and vigor by almost all of the other party bigwigs, including Mao.

There are those who worry about the effect of Chou's death on U.S.-Chinese relations. They see Chou as the man, on the Chinese side, who opened the door.

Now it is true that Chou was the official who handled the matter. And it is true too that even back in the Yenan days in the 1940s Chou believed the U.S. had much to offer. But then, so did Mao and a goodly chunk of the rest of the leadership. What must be remembered is that Chou could not have moved toward opening the door to the U.S. without the concurrence of the majority of China's effective leadership, including Mao.

Relations with China may change for one reason or another. But it will not be because of Chou's death. Those relationships, however, will, most certainly, become more turbulent on the surface. The blunt style of men like Teng Hsiao-ping will likely prevail. There won't be Chou's silky words. That is, there may be rough diplomatic seas ahead and strong verbal exchanges. But we'll more likely know accurately where we stand in Chinese eyes.

CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Poor People Have Choice, Says Reagan

By H. JOSEF HERBERT
Associated Press Writer

Ronald Reagan says poor people who live in states that don't pick up federal welfare programs that he proposes for transfer to local governments could move to states that provide substitute programs.

"You can vote with your feet in this country," Reagan told about 70 persons in the small town of Dublin as his presidential campaign swung through snowy southern New Hampshire on Friday.

"If you think that a state is mismanaged, you can pack up and can move," he continued.

Reagan cited as an example the migration of thousands of blacks over the past few decades from the rural South to urban areas of the North.

A Reagan aide said the former California governor has made similar statements in the past and that it is in line with his philosophy about federalism and the decentralization of government.

Reagan was scheduled to conclude today a two-week campaign swing that took him to five early primary states. He is challenging President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Meanwhile, there were these other political developments Friday:

—Ford's campaign manager, Howard H. "Bo" Callaway, predicted victory for the President in primaries in New Hampshire, Florida and Illinois. But he admitted the Ford campaign would be in serious trouble if Reagan should win the Illinois balloting.

Callaway, in Chicago for a meeting of GOP state chairmen, also predicted that national polls will soon show Ford moving ahead of Reagan.

—Democratic candidate Sargent Shriver launched a door-to-door campaign in Mississippi to get his supporters to attend state caucuses that will select convention delegates.

—Alabama Gov. George Wallace said in Jackson, Miss., that Mississippi Democratic leaders decided against holding a primary because "they didn't want George Wallace to win it."

He said he does not expect to win much support from party caucuses scheduled for Jan. 24. —Democratic state chairmen met in New Orleans to plot their strategy for the upcoming presidential campaign. Party chairman Robert F. Strauss said chances are good that a Democrat will win the White House this year. He said any of the 11 Democrats in the race would make a better president than Ford or Reagan. "I sure wouldn't trade what we've got for the likes of what they've got," he said.

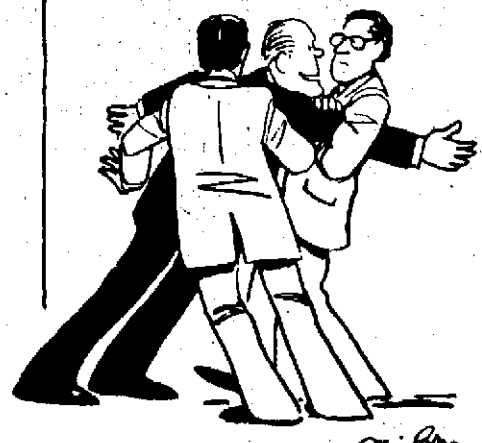

—National GOP Chairwoman Mary Louise Smith said in Chicago that the primary battle between Ford and Reagan will not hurt the party. She also said she thought the setbacks suffered by the Republicans following the Watergate scandals are "all behind us."

—In Cherry Hill, N.J., the head of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department called on the union's members "to do everything in our political power to prevent the nomination and election of President Ford." Robert A. Georgine, speaking at a conference of union officials from 11 Northeastern states, said Ford "broke his promise and ... double-crossed the people of the nation" when he vetoed a construction union picketing bill he had first said he would sign.

Attends Dinner

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rose Kennedy, campaigning for the first time since the death of her son, Sen. Robert Kennedy, attended a fund-raising event for her son-in-law, Democratic presidential aspirant Sargent Shriver. But she said Friday she was not going to campaign actively for Shriver.

What must be remembered is that Chou could not have moved toward opening the door to the U.S. without the concurrence of the majority of China's effective leadership, including Mao.

Relations with China may change for one reason or another. But it will not be because of Chou's death. Those relationships, however, will, most certainly, become more turbulent on the surface. The blunt style of men like Tang Hsiao-ping will likely prevail. There won't be Chou's silky words. That is, there may be rough diplomatic seas ahead and strong verbal exchanges. But we'll more likely know accurately where we stand in Chinese eyes.

CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Poor People Have Choice, Says Reagan

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

Ronald Reagan says poor people who live in states that don't pick up federal welfare programs that he proposes for transfer to local governments could move to states that provide substitute programs.

"You can vote with your feet in this country," Reagan told about 70 persons in the small town of Dublin as his presidential campaign swung through snowy southern New Hampshire on Friday.

"If you think that a state is mismanaged, you can pack up and can move," he continued.

Reagan cited as an example the migration of thousands of blacks over the past few decades from the rural South to urban areas of the North.

A Reagan aide said the former California governor has made similar statements in the past and that it is in line with his philosophy about federalism and the decentralization of government.

Reagan was scheduled to conclude today a two-week campaign swing that took him to five early primary states. He is challenging President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Meanwhile, there were these other political developments Friday:

—Ford's campaign manager, Howard H. "Bo" Callaway, predicted victory for the President in primaries in New Hampshire, Florida and Illinois. But he admitted the Ford campaign would be in serious trouble if Reagan should win the Illinois balloting.

Callaway, in Chicago for a meeting of GOP state chairmen, also predicted that national polls will soon show Ford moving ahead of Reagan.

—Democratic candidate Sargent Shriver launched a door-to-door campaign in Mississippi to get his supporters to attend state caucuses that will select convention delegates.

—Alabama Gov. George Wallace said in Jackson, Miss., that Mississippi Democratic leaders decided against holding a primary because "they didn't want George Wallace to win it." He said he does not expect to win much support from party caucuses scheduled for Jan. 24.

—Democratic state chairmen met in New Orleans to plot their strategy for the upcoming presidential campaign. Party chairman Robert F. Strauss said chances are good that a Democrat will win the White House this year. He said any of the 11 Democrats in the race would make a better president than Ford or Reagan. "I sure wouldn't trade what we've got for the likes of what they've got," he said.

—National GOP Chairwoman Mary Louise Smith said in Chicago that the primary battle between Ford and Reagan will not hurt the party. She also said she thought the setbacks suffered by the Republicans following the Watergate scandals are "all behind us."

—In Cherry Hill, N.J., the head of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department called on the union's members "to do everything in our political power to prevent the nomination and election of President Ford." Robert A. Georgine, speaking at a conference of union officials from 11 Northeastern states, said Ford "broke his promise and ... double-crossed the people of the nation" when he vetoed a construction union picketing bill he had first said he would sign.

Attends Dinner

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rose Kennedy, campaigning for the first time since the death of her son, Sen. Robert Kennedy, attended a fund-raising event for her son-in-law, Democratic presidential aspirant Sargent Shriver. But she said Friday she was not going to campaign actively for Shriver.

U.S. Population Makeup Changing

As members of the "baby boom" which followed the end of World War II make their way through life's journey, they are managing to create some tall waves. Over the last five years, Census Bureau records show the population of the United States grew by 4.5 percent.

But that average tells little about what has been happening within the various age groups in recent years. In the same five-year period, the 25-34 age group expanded by 23 percent, the 18-24 ages grew by 13 percent and the number of people 65 and older increased 12 percent.

The age group 5-13 declined almost 9 percent, while the under-5 group shrank by more than 7 percent. All of which adds up to major changes in the population mix. Overall primary and secondary school enrollment is declining, the college and labor force ages are expanding, as are the elderly.

By way of comparison, the average age in the United States today is 28.8 years.

Lawrence Church Schism Produces Legal Battle

PAW PAW — A feud between two factions of a church in Lawrence has wound up in Van Buren circuit court here. One faction filed a lawsuit to block the other from taking possession of the church and its property and making the church into the Bible Fellowship church.

The church has been the First Congregational church of Lawrence.

Filing the suit were 24 people. It was filed against the Bible Fellowship church and the church's pastor, Rev. Richard Triestram.

Rev. Triestram declined to go into the situation at the present time because of the lawsuit but indicated that the Bible Fellowship church was more Bible-oriented than the previous church.

According to Rev. Triestram, the previous church had been an independent Congregationalist church.

Probate Judge Meyer Warshawsky, filling in as circuit court judge until a new one is appointed, said a hearing would be held in the case soon.

The judge's statement was made after he rejected a request for a temporary injunction against the takeover.

The suit seeks a permanent injunction against the change in the church and attorney's fees. It challenges the legality of the change in view of the exclusion of six members from a vote to make the change and also the basis for the exclusion.

According to the suit, had the six been permitted to vote, the issue to change the church into the Bible Fellowship church would have been defeated.

The suit said the vote was 22 to 9 for passage. If the six had voted, the suit contended, the issue would have lost because of a requirement that a change be approved by a two-thirds majority of those voting.

The vote was held at a Nov. 18 meeting presided over by Rev.

Triestram.

According to the suit, the six were excluded because they had been listed as "inactive members" who were not eligible to vote.

The suit contends that the six should not have been classified as "inactive."

The vote was on adoption of a new constitution for the church which provided for creation of the Bible Fellowship church.

Eau Claire Men Save Trucker In Fiery Crash

EAU CLAIRE — Quick action by three Eau Claire men may have saved the life of an Indiana trucker whose truck flipped over on its side on M-82 just east of here yesterday afternoon, according to Berrien county sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said Harold Robinson, 63, Lakeville, Ind., driver of the bulk feed truck, was headed east on M-82 when he apparently lost control of the vehicle. The truck spun completely around and flipped on its side, bursting into flames.

Jim Ferry, 23, Eau Claire, was at Farm Bureau Oil company, corner of M-82 and M-140, and together with Doug Babcock, owner of the firm, witnessed the accident. Ferry ran outside to assist the driver while Babcock called the fire department. Two employees of the oil firm, Bob Bishop and Chuck Walters also ran outside with fire extinguishers and kept the fire from spreading to the cab of the truck, while Ferry climbed up on the passenger's side and assisted the driver out of the truck cab. The driver was not injured, police said.

Ferry said the truck, a Wilson Grain & Coal company vehicle, Lakeville, Ind., appeared to start to shake as it was coming down the road. "It appeared something in the back axle snapped, just prior to the accident," he said.

The truck was loaded with grain, which caught fire after the truck's fuel caught fire, Ferry said. The 3:05 p.m. accident occurred near the intersection of M-140 in Berrien township, police said.

The truck fire was extinguished by firemen from the Eau Claire village, Berrien and Pipestone township fire department, after causing extensive damage to the vehicle.

Retiring Van Buren Judge Cast In Defendant's Role

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — An estimated 160 people put retired Van Buren Circuit Court Judge David Anderson Jr. in the defendant's chair last night at a banquet here in his honor.

County officials, attorneys and friends took turns ribbing and then lauding the 66-year-old judge who stepped down from the bench on Jan. 1 after 16 years.

"I never realized how many friends I had until I walked in here," he said.

"I hope I honestly deserve the credit you have given me," added Anderson who was first elected to a joint Cass-Van Buren circuit in 1959 after serving as Van Buren prosecutor from 1935 to 1938.

The banquet honoring Anderson and his wife, Mary, was held at the LaCantina restaurant.

Anderson noted that he had enjoyed his years on the bench because "Van Buren county has one of the outstanding bars in the state. They (the lawyers) don't cause problems for circuit judges."

On his retirement he said, "I've been among the ranks of the unemployed for two weeks and I like it...I'm seriously thinking of making a career of it."

Among those paying tribute to Anderson were James Hoff, Cass county circuit judge; Atty. Sheldon Rupert of Paw Paw, a friend of Anderson's for 35 years; and Felix (Phil) Racette, editor of a weekly newspaper in Paw Paw and long-time golfing partner.

Hoff said judges are measured on two things — the ability to be free from judicial error and the ability to be free from judicial misconduct.

"All of us know Judge Anderson scores high on both accounts," Hoff said.

Rupert said Anderson had "conducted an excellent court with honor, dignity, and integrity," and that Mrs. Anderson, who served as the judge's secretary for 15 years, had "greatly assisted in assuring the wheels of justice ground smoothly and well."

Racette broke up the crowd, which included many lawyers, with his remark that he had chosen Anderson as his golfing partner so as to "intimidate opponents either attorneys or potential wrongdoers, and I'm not sure if they're not one and the same."

Harold Schuitmaker, president of the Van Buren county Bar association, which sponsored the dinner, also read written notes from Gov. Milliken and Rep. Edward Hutchinson (R-St. Joseph) congratulating Anderson on his years of service.

Anderson, who was admitted to the bar in 1933, also served as president of the Paw Paw school board from 1947 to 1958. His father, the late David Anderson, Sr., was a Van Buren prosecuting attorney and probate judge.

Schuitmaker said he did not expect Gov. Milliken's appointment of a successor to be announced for at least one or two weeks, noting that candidates still must go before the state bar association.

Among those who have announced their interest for the post are Atty. David Grier of South Haven, Van Buren Probate Judge Meyer Warshawsky of South Haven, and former Seventh District Court Judge Luther I. Daines of Paw Paw.

Hagar Firm Sues State To Get Tax Exemption

A Hagar township manufacturing firm has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court asking the court to overrule a decision by the State Tax Commission

(STC) which denied the firm a tax break. Heald, Inc., of US-33 North, asks that the court reverse the STC's denial and grant the firm an Industrial Facilities Exemption certificate which would allow a partial tax exemption on a new building.

Cited as defendants were the STC and State of Michigan.

Heald contends that the STC in November denied its application for the tax break, and after the firm requested a reversal of the denial, the STC on Dec. 23 affirmed the denial.

The company claims it began construction of a new building on May 15, 1974, and filed an application for the exemption certificate with Hagar township.

The suit contends the township in February established an industrial development district in the area where Heald is located, which is one of the prerequisites for the tax exemption. The suit says the STC denied the certificate, saying construction began more than 12 months before the application for the tax break was filed.

The suit charges the denial violates the constitution and act under which tax exemptions are granted, and charges the STC with an "abuse of discretion."

In filing its application with the township, Heald officials estimated the cost of the new plant addition at $78,857. Tax savings would be an estimated $750 yearly for 12 years, the firm said.

Heald manufactures do-it-yourself kits, including a line of all-terrain vehicles and lawn tractors.

Police said their investigation began shortly after 10:30 p.m. when troopers discovered the first of the three break-ins.

Troopers said the names of property owners had not been determined early this morning and their investigation was continuing.

Cookies Of The Past Has Special Meaning

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Are your fingers snapping telling tales about you?

They might be, says the organizer of a Harvard university museum exhibition of cookie molds from the Middle Ages and Baroque periods.

"Imaginative molds for cookie dough were expressions of the age-old human desire to beautify the humble things of life and endow them with special meaning," said Anne-Helene Harding of Boston's Gomme Institute, the show's organizer.

"In this way, man adds a spiritual ingredient to the physical character of his food," she said.

A 1487 mold, Dr. Harding said, was used by German Emperor Frederick III for 4,000 gingerbread cookies bearing his likeness. Another, from 1785 depicting an Austrian billygoat rider wearing a Napoleonic hat, was meant to ridicule the French conqueror.

The earliest cookie molds were made from clay and used for measuring dough in Mesopotamia, Greece and Egypt, Dr. Harding said. Later, bakers in medieval monasteries "gave ideas to the secular bakers," she said, and an intricate woodcarving style developed.

"I don't think these challenging molds could be done today," she said. "You have to have a special mind, a special imagination. The carvers were specialists in negative forms. Today, craftsmen don't have the training."

By the late 18th century, cookies served as a delicious picture service.

"Few people had books," she said. Some depicted contemporary street scenes, while others showed theatrical characters or religious figures.

"Successful confectioners realized that the appeal of the cookies lay first in their psychological impact and second in the pleasure of eating them," she said.

"People's satisfaction in recognizing familiar picture types was as important in the choice of designs as it is in today's cartoons and comic strips."

The show, at the Busch-Reisinger Museum, features 130 wooden cookie molds which tell tales, serve as campaign buttons and poke fun at the mighty.

The oldest on display tells the familiar story of William Tell, the Swiss partisan who refused to bow before the hat of the Austrian emperor and who subsequently won his freedom by shooting an apple off his son's head.

Cookies Of The Past Has Special Meaning

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Are your gingersnaps telling tales about you?

They might be, says the organizer of a Harvard university museum exhibition of cookie molds from the Middle Ages and Baroque periods.

"Imaginative molds for cookie dough were expressions of the age-old human desire to beautify the humble things of life and endow them with special meaning," said Anne-Helene Harding of Boston's Goethe Institute, the show's organizer.

"In this way, man adds a spiritual ingredient to the physical character of his food," she said.

The oldest on display tells the familiar story of William Tell, the Swiss partisan who refused to bow before the hat of the Austrian emperor and who subsequently won his freedom by shooting an apple off his son's head.

A 1487 mold, Dr. Harding said, was used by German Emperor Frederick III for 4,000 gingerbread cookies bearing his likeness. Another, from 1795 depicting an Austrian billygoat rider wearing a Napoleonic hat, was meant to ridicule the French conqueror.

The earliest cookie molds were made from clay and used for measuring dough in Mesopotamia, Greece and Egypt, Dr. Harding said. Later, bakers in medieval monasteries "gave ideas to the secular bakers," she said, and an intricate woodcarving style developed.

"I don't think these challenging molds could be done today," she said. "You have to have a special mind, a special imagination. The carvers were specialists in negative forms. Today, craftsmen don't have the training."

By the late 18th century, cookies served as a delicious picture service.

"Few people had books, but everyone had cookies," she said. Some depicted contemporary street scenes, while others showed theatrical characters or religious figures.

"Successful confectioners realized that the appeal of the cookies lay first in their psychological impact and second in the pleasure of eating them," she said.

"People's satisfaction in recognizing familiar picture types was as important in the choice of designs as it is in today's cartoons and comic strips."

Colonial Clergy Courageous During Revolution

Role Of Religion Being Revived In Delaware

In September, 1777, two companies of British soldiers were quartered in Holy Trinity church at Wilmington, Del.

The troops had just clashed with Washington's ragged Continental Army at the bloody battle of Brandywine and were regrouping before continuing their march into Philadelphia, the provisional capital and largest city in the colonies.

Tradition holds that the British commanding officer approached the pastor of the Swedish Lutheran parish and ordered him to preach to the men and perform the Sacrament of Holy Communion. Though facing a fixed bayonet, the man of the cloth refused.

The story of the American Revolution is interwoven with the patriotism and courage shown by members of the colonial clergy. From the American point of view, freedom of religion, as well as political and economic rights, was clearly at stake in the revolutionary struggle.

In the early days of this country, preaching and politics went hand-in-hand. Even before the fray in full canonicals. From the pulpit, congregations were reminded that many among them had been obliged to leave their native countries to enjoy the religious and civil liberties founded in the New World. When a threat to religious freedom appeared, it quickly developed as an underlying cause for the Revolution.

By 1778, there were 3,000 churches in the colonies worshipping God under 14 different creeds. The Congregational and Presbyterian sects were strongest, and Baptist congregations outnumbered those of the Church of England. An ocean away from the British mother church, Anglicanism suffered from weakness and disorganization while the non-conformist churches flourished under the heady freedom of America.

Seeking to strengthen their organization, the Anglicans petitioned England to appoint an American bishop, an act which brought the dissident religious forces together in opposition. Fear of repression was widespread, though there is no evidence that the Church of England ever considered the request seriously and most historians agree that an arriving bishop would have met with the same treatment as the tea at Boston Harbor.

While most colonial ministers prayed and preached for the American cause, the Anglican Church was seriously split by the Revolution. On the one hand, it furnished the largest number of Loyalists of any church, and on the other the majority of signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Many prominent Anglicans, including George Washington and James Madison, recognized the fact that no single established church could possibly satisfy the needs of a diverse, scattered and expanding population. By the end of the War for Independence, the separation of church and state in America was virtually complete.

Today, the role of religion in the Revolution is being revived in the historic old churches of Delaware, where American religious heritage has lain dormant in the silent churchyards, and shrines for the last 200 years. At the Welsh Tract Baptist church outside Newark, the military and religious conflicts are dramatically unified near the site of the only Revolutionary War engagement fought on Delaware soil.

In early September, 1777, one of the first Stars and Stripes was unfurled in land battle at Cooch's Bridge. Here Washington's troops attempted to delay the British redcoats at the creek while the Commander-in-Chief and Lafayette hurriedly assembled Continental Army units for the defense of Philadelphia.

Outnumbered, the Americans retreated along an old colonial post road and reassembled at the Welsh Tract church. The advancing British continued their fire, and one cannon ball passed through the church.

Two centuries have witnessed few changes at this oldest primitive Baptist church in the country. The fundamentalist religion is still preached on one Sunday each month, by self-taught elders in the severely plain meeting house, where the cannon's scar remains evident in a brickwork over portion of the wall. Across the road is the old whitewashed stone cottage of the sexton and the carriage sheds of a bygone era, now within earshot of flowing interstate traffic.

Old Welsh Tract church is one of 16 historic attractions on the "George Washington Country Heritage Trail," a self-guided tour of five mid-Atlantic states and Washington, D.C. that visits sites associated with the life of the First President. A side trip to other Delaware churches — all within two hours' driving time — offers an interesting Bicentennial tour of religion in colonial America.

A few miles away from the Old Welsh Tract church is Holy Trinity (Old Swedes) church, where the brave pastor defied British authority. Old Swedes is the oldest protestant church in the nation unaltered from the original design and still in active use. It was built in 1699 not far from the landing place of the first Swedish immigrants to the New World, some 80 years previous.

While the last Swedish Lutheran missionary was called home in 1781, the building and congregation were turned over to the newly formed Protestant Episcopal church, reorganized from the collapsed Anglican church. On the grounds of the surrounding churchyard is the Hendricksen House, a meticulously restored home of an early Swedish settler that now serves as a library, museum and church office.

Also, in Wilmington is St. James Episcopal church, a small country church founded in 1714. The absence of grave markers in one section of its cemetery is attributed to British soldiers who encamped in the churchyard during their pursuit of Washington's forces following the battle of Cooch's Bridge. The redcoats allegedly pulled up the stones to use for benches and sleeping pallets.

Nearby is New Castle, a small town which served as the capital of Delaware in the early Revolutionary War era and today retains much of its colonial charm. It is believed that William Penn stood on the present site of Immanuel Episcopal church in 1683 to conduct the solemn "livery of Seizen" ceremony, accepting "turf, twig, soil and water" to symbolize his taking possession of Pennsylvania and the three lower counties on the Delaware River.

Six years later, the first Church of England parish in Delaware was founded on this site and the nave of the present structure dates from 1703. The location of the church is also significant in that the Anglicans decided to build on the market square itself, land especially reserved for the free use of all townpeople.

Across the village green stands New Castle Presbyterian church, its interior restored to an authentic pre-revolutionary appearance. In March of 1706, the year Benjamin Franklin was born, the Presbyterian minister from New Castle met with six others from the middle colonies to organize the first Presbytery in America. The present building was erected the following year and original hand-hewn oak beams, fashioned by export ship builders, still support the gambrel roof of the old church.

In Dover, Christ church was built in 1734 and stands just off The Green, historic heart of this capital city of Delaware. Caesar Rodney, the state's Revolutionary hero and signer of the Declaration of Independence is buried in the churchyard.

With the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, Christ church was repeatedly attacked by vandals who considered all members of the Church of England to be Tory sympathizers. For 80 years thereafter the church remained closed until townspeople began a restoration project.

Barratt's Chapel, just north of Frederica, is popularly known as the "Cradle of Methodism in America." It was here in 1784 that Dr. (later Bishop) Thomas Coke met the great itinerant missionary Francis Asbury and drew plans for an organization of American Methodists separate from the Episcopal church. A bronze star set into the first step of the double-tiered chancel marks where the two men, at the time complete strangers, greeted each other in the traditional apostolic embrace.

Additional information on the Heritage Trail is available by writing George Washington Country, 15 South Fifth street, Richmond, Va., 22219.

HISTORIC SITE: The mother church of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware, Immanuel church stands on The Green in historic New Castle, one of 16 attractions visited along the "George Washington Country Heritage Trail." It is believed William Penn took possession of his New World holdings on this site in 1683, 20 years before the church was built.

No. 222. The Fiftieth Psalm

The fiftieth Psalm is prophetic of God's judgment. His wrath and His mercy. "Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence; a fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about him. He shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, that he may judge his people." (Psalms 50:3-4)

The Psalmist then tells us how God reacts to offerings and how he punishes the wicked. "Hear, O my people, and I will speak, O Israel, and I will testify against thee. I am God, even thy God. I will not reprove thee for thy sacrifices or thy burnt offerings, to have been continually before me.... Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay the vows unto the most High: And call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee; and thou shalt glorify me." (Psalms 50:7-15)

"But unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do, to declare my statutes, or that thou shouldst take my covenant in thy mouth? ... Now consider this, ye that forget God, lest I tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver. Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me; and to him that ordereth his conversation aright will I shew the salvation of God." (Psalms 50:16-23)

Colonial Clergy Courageous During Revolution

Role Of Religion Being Revived In Delaware

In September, 1777, two companies of British soldiers were quartered in Holy Trinity church at Wilmington, Del.

The troops had just clashed with Washington's ragged Continental Army at the bloody battle of Brandywine and were regrouping before continuing their march into Philadelphia, the provisional capital and largest city in the colonies.

Tradition holds that the British commanding officer approached the pastor of the Swedish Lutheran parish and ordered him to preach to the men and perform the Sacrament of Holy Communion. Though facing a fixed bayonet, the man of the cloth refused.

The story of the American Revolution is interwoven with the patriotism and courage shown by members of the colonial clergy. From the American point of view, freedom of religion, as well as political and economic rights, was clearly at stake in the revolutionary struggle.

In the early days of this country, preaching and politics went hand-in-hand. Even before the fray in full canonicals. From the pulpit, congregations were reminded that many among them had been obliged to leave their native countries to enjoy the religious and civil liberties founded in the New World. When a threat to religious freedom appeared, it quickly developed as an underlying cause for the Revolution.

Fear of repression was widespread, though there is no evidence that the Church of England ever considered the request seriously and most historians agree that an arriving bishop would have met with the same treatment as the tea at Boston Harbor.

While most colonial ministers prayed and preached for the American cause, the Anglican Church was seriously split by the Revolution. On the one hand, it furnished the largest number of Loyalists of any church, and on the other the majority of signers of the Declaration of Independence.

A side trip to other Delaware churches — all within two hours' driving time — offers an interesting Bicentennial tour of religion in colonial America.

A few miles away from the Old Welsh Tract church is Holy Trinity (Old Swedes) church, where the brave pastor defied British authority. Old Swedes is the oldest protestant church in the nation unaltered from the original design and still in active use. It was built in 1699 not far from the landing place of the first Swedish immigrants to the New World, some 60 years previous.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

What Really Is Alcoholism?

Dear Ann Landers: We like your approach to alcoholism — especially the support you give AA, Al-Anon and Alateen. And now, will you settle an argument for us?

There are several definitions of an alcoholic. Here is one I found in some literature from the National Council on Alcoholism. Please comment:

"It doesn't make any difference whether a person drinks whiskey, gin, champagne, or beer; whether he drinks before breakfast or only after dinner, alone or with others, at home or abroad. If drinking continues to disrupt his life, he is an alcoholic. The opposite is equally valid. If his drinking does NOT cause trouble, even if he drinks before breakfast, he is not an alcoholic." — You Decide.

Dear Y.D.: I go along with the definition — up to the last sentence. Some alcoholics manage, miraculously, not to cause trouble — but they are alcoholics — nevertheless, because once they take a drink, they cannot control their drinking. THAT is the critical difference between the social drinker and the alcoholic.

Times Change

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is from the 8th-grade girls of Marshall, Arkansas. We want to respond to the woman who said teenage boys act rude and push us girls around because we dress like guys (in faded jeans and hip-huggers). She said when girls look like guys they deserve to be treated like guys.

What about guys who look like girls? There are several in our school whose hair is much longer than most girls'.

We don't wear jeans, overalls, denim shirts, battle jackets and cowboy belts all the time. We also wear dresses and pantsuits. The styles have changed a lot since that woman was in school. Girls are much more active in sports than they used to be. Pants, instead of skirts are more practical. Although our jeans may be faded we know that if they have holes in them they are not fit to be worn in public. Thanks for letting us have our say. — The Other Side

Dear O.S.: O.K. You've had your say, and said it well. The woman who wrote and put down today's teenage girls unleashed an unexpected torrent of angry responses.

Many things have changed these past ten years, including the way teenagers express anger. I've seen a lot of four-letter words this week. Cool it, cats, will ya' please?

Address It Right

Dear Ann Landers: The word is, "If you want millions of people to read it, write to Ann Landers." Please print this letter because what I have to say is important.

I work in a large hospital. Every day we receive hundreds of pieces of mail. Frequently "get-well" cards with cash arrive, addressed to the hospital. This means we must open the envelope. More often than not the information inside is inadequate. The card says, "Dear Mary" — or "Dear Joe."

Tell your readers to address their cards and letters as follows: patient's full name, room number or department (if possible), and a return address would be a big help.

People often wonder why they don't receive a "thank you." Maybe the card with the money was never received. — Frustrated

Dear Frustrated: May I tag alone? Readers often send stamped envelopes addressed to ME instead of to themselves. And they wonder why they don't get an answer. Thanks a heap.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex And How To Deal With It — A Guide For Teens And Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped (13 cents now), self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Dr. Lester Coleman

A new inflatable bedpan can make life easier for bedridden patients and the attendants who are in charge of them.

When deflated, the bedpan is three-quarters of an inch high and easily slides beneath the patient. The bedpan can then be inflated with an aerosol can or with pressurized air from any other source. It can be raised as high as five inches and can lift a patient as heavy as 200 pounds.

This bedpan, made of heavy plastic, can be cleaned and sterilized easily.

A new and important test can now distinguish between hepatitis caused by a virus and hepatitis caused by alcohol.

The great advantage of this test is that it may avoid the need for making a biopsy of the liver in order to determine the exact cause of the hepatitis.

Dr. N. Kanagasundaram, of the College of Medicine in Newark, N.J., has been using this complex chemical test with impressive results.

The early recognition and treatment of hepatitis of any origin offers a greater possibility of control and cure of the condition.

At the Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y., Dr. Michael W. Mossessoff and his colleagues devote much of their attention to the clotting mechanism of the blood.

Blood factors that are deficient in the hemophilia, or persons with a bleeding tendency, can often be replaced. Dr. Mossessoff says, "In the past 10 years there has been an explosion of information and treatment that has benefited the hemophiliac."

"Life-threatening emergencies involving the hemophiliac, such as a car accident or major surgery, can now be handled effectively."

Prior to 1965, such life-saving methods were not available. By replacing the blood factors deficient in the hemophiliac, these courageous patients may, in many instances, be given the proverbial "new lease on life" and lead productive lives free from fear.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism — A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice. For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Alcoholism booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. Please mention the booklet by title.

Library Seeks History Book

CASSOPOLIS — The Cass County Library, Cassopolis, is collecting local history books and information about our country's history.

The library is attempting to build its local history section and begin local collections in its four branches at Edwardsburg, Union, Jones and Howard township.

The library wants local history books, letters, county atlases and diaries concerning the county.

It has available cemetery listings, marriage records, local history books, the Cassopolis Vigilant on microfilm, census records and some genealogy.

Blood factors that are deficient in the hemophilic, or persons with a bleeding tendency, can often be replaced. Dr. Mosesson says, "In the past 10 years there has been an explosion of information and treatment that has benefited the hemophilic."

"Life-threatening emergencies involving the hemophilic, such as a car accident or major surgery, can now be handled effectively."

Prior to 1965, such life-saving methods were not available. By replacing the blood factors deficient in the hemophilic these courageous patients may, in many instances, be given the proverbial "new lease on life" and lead productive lives free from fear.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if Harold Vanderbilt really invented the game of contract bridge.

The answer is that he certainly did. The year was 1925 and he did such a good job that the laws of the game have not changed greatly from his first ones.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The International Bridge Assn. honored Julius Rosenberg, president of the World Bridge Federation, as its bridge man of the year for his judicious and diplomatic handling of the "Bermuda Crisis" of the 1975 championships and for his long continuing work on behalf of world bridge relationships.

Julius, who had held every possible bridge office, has also found time to be a top player. Maybe not at the very top, but certainly able to hold his own in any company.

He sat West some years ago in an important match. His spade opening was sound indeed, but in the system he was using his partner's jump to three hearts was preemptive. So Julius sold out to South's five-club bid.

An unthinking player would have opened the king of spades. But Julius reasoned correctly that dummy would be short in spades and it was up to Julius to stop as many ruffs as he possibly could. So Julius led a small trump.

Later on, he got to lead a second trump. The unfortunate

'God Came Through' For Trapped Hikers

By BOB BAUM

OREGON CITY, Ore. (AP) — "We put everything on God and He came through," said Randy Knapp after he and two other teen-age hikers survived 16 days on storm-battered Mt. Hood, a majestic 11,235-foot peak 80 miles east of Portland.

Firms Tug Over Alaska Gas Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The competition between two companies that want to transport Alaskan North Slope natural gas to the lower 48 states seems destined for settlement by Congress.

That's the prevailing view of congressional sources and officials of the two competing companies. Meanwhile, the companies' lawyers are taking each other's plans apart in hearings before the Federal Power Commission.

Several bills have been introduced and their sponsors expect hearings to be under way by spring in the House and Senate. The bills range from cutting short the FPC proceedings to simply mandating one or the other proposal for transporting the natural gas.

There is unanimous agreement on one point: There will be only one winner, one system for carrying an estimated 10 per cent of known U.S. natural gas reserves to market.

El Paso Alaska, a subsidiary of El Paso Natural Gas, a U.S. pipeline company, is planning a natural gas pipeline roughly paralleling the crude oil line which is under construction.

El Paso's gas would be liquefied at Point Gravina on Prince William Sound and loaded into a specially built fleet of 11 tankers for delivery and distribution to Southern California.

MAIL 'LIBERALIZED' TOKYO (AP) — The Provisional Revolutionary Government of Saigon has totally liberalized the exchange of letters between South Vietnam and foreign countries, including the United States, Britain, Canada, Thailand and South Korea, a Japanese report from Saigon said today.

But they rationed their food, dug caves in the snow and read their Bibles every day.

The driver of a snow tractor spotted the three Friday morning.

Knapp, 18, and Matt Meacham, 16, were taken to Willamette Falls Community Hospital to be treated for frostbite. The third hiker, Gary Schneider, 16, remained in the hospital for observation but seemed unharmed by the ordeal.

The youths tunneled 40 feet out of a snow cave to the sunshine Friday. They had dug the last of seven snow caves at the 7,800-foot level of the glacier peak about 10 days ago.

They nearly ran out of food and did not run out of fuel for a heater used to melt snow for drinking water. But they said they didn't run out of hope.

"We knew we'd last as long as God wanted us to," Meacham said. "The only thing we were worried about was whether our parents would be getting too awfully worried."

The youths, all students at Walla Walla Valley Academy, a Seventh-day Adventist school in College Place, Wash., spent most of their time reading the Bible.

"We prayed and read our Bible," Schneider said. "I think we read almost the whole thing."

They had several scrapes with disaster: All three fell into a crevasse several days after they became lost.

But, Schneider said, they fell at an angle that allowed them to get out easily.

A short time later, Schneider nearly was swept away by an avalanche.

"I started to fall forward (down the mountain)," he said. "I cried 'God help me turn around,' and somehow I did."

Survival experts had given the three a chance of survival, as long as they kept their heads, dug a snow cave and rationed food carefully. They were well-equipped for a winter climb.

Schneider had given his skis to his father, whom he met Jan. 1 on the way up the mountain. He said Friday he didn't need the skis because they would have been useless in the wet snow.

Since Jan. 1, about 11 feet of snow has fallen at Timberline Lodge, the base for search operations.

All three said they planned to climb again.

Meacham was on his first mountain climbing trip. He was straggling behind the others when they were spotted Friday.

"Matt was getting pretty weak," Knapp said.

But he said he wanted to go again, "if it doesn't bother my parents too much."

In November, Knapp was lost for five days on Mt. Rainier during what hikers call a "white-out," blizzard conditions during which visibility is nil.

He said it may be a while before he goes climbing again, but he definitely will go.

The three hikers filled plastic water bottles with snow, then carried them next to their bodies to melt the snow into drinking water.

"We got two or three quarts a day this way," Knapp said.

Mountain experts say the water and the extra-thick sleeping bags they carried enabled the youths to survive.

They had no food the last five days, except dried pancake mix which they mixed with water.

Schneider said he had learned two things from the experience: "I've learned to follow my compass and trust in God."

POLICE ROUNDUP Officers Arrest Man In Drug Store

Benton Harbor police arrested a man inside Talbot's drug store, 481 Pipestone street, after responding to a burglar alarm at 1:20 a.m. today, the department reported.

Arrested was a man identified as David Smith, about 19, address unknown. Police said Smith was booked into Berrien county jail on a charge of breaking and entering.

The department said three officers responded to the alarm that sounded in police headquarters. The officers found an open window and a man inside, the department said. The man was reported unarmed. The store was closed for business at the time.

State police at the Benton Harbor post reported the arrest late Friday night of Jacob Johnson, 39, Milwaukee, Wis., who was booked on charges of violating the controlled substance act and having open intoxicants in an auto.

Democrats Get 'Game Plan'

State Suit Says 'Device' Is Really A Branch Bank

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state filed suit Friday asking a federal court to stop the National Bank of Detroit from operating an electronic banking device located away from its approved branches.

The suit asks the court to require the bank to get permission from the federal Comptroller of Currency to operate the facility as a branch bank because it is not located at an existing branch.

The device allows depositors to withdraw funds from their accounts and receive money in the form of loans drawn on a pre-arranged line of credit.

The one machine named in the suit has been in operation at Detroit's Blue Cross-Blue Shield Building since November.

A positive ruling by the court would in effect order the comptroller to step in and regulate such devices under current state and national banking laws. In 1974, the comptroller ruled that national banks can operate these electronic funds transfer devices without restriction.

"We are viewing this as a branch bank," Richard Francis, commissioner of the state commerce department's Financial Institutions Bureau said. Under state and national branch banking laws, he said, the bank should have obtained permission from the comptroller before setting the device up.

He said that before filing suit he asked the comptroller to prevent operation of the device. So far, he said, the comptroller has refused to do this.

Six other states have filed suits seeking the same goal, Francis said.

Francis said he has nothing against the device, but added: "Without regulatory approval and supervision, the machines do not provide proper safeguards for privacy and security as would normally be the case for banking and approved branch facilities."

Robert M. Surdam, NBD board chairman, said, "We have not yet been served with the complaint in the suit and are, therefore, not in a position to comment on its details."

He added, "We feel, however, that the service in question, made possible by advancing technology, is one which many people need and desire."

Francis said the device is the "first and only" off-premises electronic banking device in Michigan. Other banks that use these devices have them on the wall of a branch bank, he said.

A bill pending in the Michigan House of Representatives would set legal guidelines for the establishment of these facilities.

The other states which have filed similar suits are Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Colorado, Ohio, and West Virginia. Washington, D.C., also has filed a suit.

Officers Arrest Man In Drug Store

Benton Harbor police arrested a man inside Talbot's drug store, 481 Pipestone street, after responding to a burglar alarm at 1:20 a.m. today, the department reported.

Arrested was a man identified as David Smith, about 19, address unknown. Police said Smith was booked into Berrien county jail on a charge of breaking and entering.

The department said three officers responded to the alarm that sounded in police headquarters. The officers found an open window and a man inside, the department said. The man was reported unarmed. The store was closed for business at the time.

State police at the Benton Harbor post reported the arrest late Friday night of Jacob Johnson, 39, Milwaukee, Wis., who was booked on charges of violating the controlled substance act and having open intoxicants in an auto.

Troopers made the arrest after stopping an auto for a violation on M-139 at Nickerson avenue, Benton township, and confiscating a quantity of suspected marijuana and opened liquor bottles, the post said.

Benton Harbor police said Nancy Bell, 19, was treated and released from Mercy hospital, after allegedly being struck by fists and a wine bottle during a quarrel at her apartment, 225 Bellview, about 12:15 a.m. today. Police said she sustained several lacerations about the head. No arrest was made, pending the signing of a complaint by the victim, police said.

Benton township police Friday investigated thefts of two citizens' band radios, totaling $350.

James Brandonisio of 937 North Shore drive, Benton township, said a $150 CB unit was stolen from his auto, parked at Sandvik Steel, Inc., 2235 Dewey avenue.

Gathel Jenkins, 1426 Monroe, Fairplain, reported the theft of a $200 CB unit from his auto, parked at the Berrien county road commission office, 2860 East Napier avenue.

Thefts reported to Benton Harbor police:

—Cash totaling $17 from the residence of Barbara Pryor, 609 Broadway.

—A hubcap, valued at $22 from an auto owned by Raymond Nalitt, 6221 Pierce, Lake Michigan Beach and parked at the V-M Corp. plant, 305 Territorial road.

Democrats Get 'Game Plan'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Democrats' 1976 game plan to boost the economy and win elections is to stress legislation that would whittle down unemployment, say congressional party leaders.

Majority Whip John McFall and Speaker Carl Albert laid out the strategy to about 30 members of the New Members Caucus who attended a conference Friday on Democratic programs for this year.

State Suit Says 'Device' Is Really A Branch Bank

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state filed suit Friday asking a federal court to stop the National Bank of Detroit from operating an electronic banking device located away from its approved branches.

The suit asks the court to require the bank to get permission from the federal Comptroller of Currency to operate the facility as a branch bank because it is not located at an existing branch.

The device allows depositors to withdraw funds from their accounts and receive money in the form of loans drawn on a pre-arranged line of credit.

The one machine named in the suit has been in operation at Detroit's Blue Cross-Blue Shield Building since November.

A positive ruling by the court would in effect order the comptroller to step in and regulate such devices under current state and national banking laws. In 1974, the comptroller ruled that national banks can operate these electronic funds transfer devices without restriction.

"We are viewing this as a branch bank," Richard Francis, commissioner of the state commerce department's Financial Institutions Bureau said. Under state and national branch banking laws, he said, the bank should have obtained permission from the comptroller before setting the device up.

He said that before filing suit he asked the comptroller to prevent operation of the device. So far, he said, the comptroller has refused to do this.

Six other states have filed suits seeking the same goal, Francis said.

Francis said he has nothing against the devices, but added: "Without regulatory approval and supervision, the machines do not provide proper safeguards for privacy and security as would normally be the case for banking and approved branch facilities."

Robert M. Surdam, NBD board chairman, said, "We have not yet been served with the complaint in the suit and are, therefore, not in a position to comment on its details."

He added, "We feel, however, that the service in question, made possible by advancing technology, is one which many people need and desire."

Francis said the device is the "first and only" off-premises electronic banking device in Michigan. Other banks that use these devices have them on the wall of a branch bank, he said.

A bill pending in the Michigan House of Representatives would set legal guidelines for the establishment of these facilities.

The other states which have filed similar suits are Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Colorado, Ohio, and West Virginia. Washington, D.C., also has filed a suit.

Firms Tug Over Alaska Gas Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The competition between two companies that want to transport Alaskan North Slope natural gas to the lower 48 states seems destined for settlement by Congress.

That's the prevailing view of congressional sources and officials of the two competing companies. Meanwhile, the companies' lawyers are taking each other's plans apart in hearings before the Federal Power Commission.

Several bills have been introduced and their sponsors expect hearings to be under way by spring in the House and Senate. The bills range from cutting short the FPC proceedings to simply mandating one or the other proposal for transporting the natural gas.

There is unanimous agreement on one point: There will be only one winner, one system for carrying an estimated 10 per cent of known U.S. natural gas reserves to market.

El Paso Alaska, a subsidiary of El Paso Natural Gas, a U.S. pipeline company, is planning a natural gas pipeline roughly paralleling the crude oil line which is under construction.

El Paso's gas would be liquefied at Point Gravina on Prince William Sound and loaded into a specially built fleet of 11 tankers for delivery and distribution to Southern California.

Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co., a consortium of major oil company subsidiaries and pipeline companies, would build a pipeline across Canada. It would transport some Canadian gas as well. The gas would be distributed in the Midwestern states.

Arctic contends it will distribute gas where it is needed most, more cheaply and dependably than El Paso.

But El Paso argues that time is on the side of its "All American" route. Arctic, El Paso says, faces potentially fatal tests in pioneering a new route across unsettled native claim lands, and winning approval from Canadian authorities over Canadian company proposals.

The Interior Department, at the direction of Congress, studied both plans and found both to be feasible. Each should take approximately $7 billion and five years to build, at a minimum, the department said.

HOUSE DESIGN 7603: Here's a home that can grow with your budget and family. For starters, build it as a two-bedroom house that is 28 feet wide by 34 feet deep. When you're ready, finish the already enclosed upstairs to add two bedrooms and a second bath. At this stage, you may want to turn the downstairs front bedroom into a den, or eliminate the back bedroom and expand the family room to a width of 35 feet by removing the partition between them. If lot width allows, you can expand still further, adding a garage and mud room and another upstairs bedroom. This last step gives you a home that is 58 feet wide by 34 feet deep.

IMPROVEMENT PLAN: Stop singing the washday blues and organize your laundry so doing the wash is a pleasant chore. This plan sets up individual bins that sort the wash for you and also can store laundry supplies. The work shelf below is very handy when the wash comes out of the machine and you're faced with folding it. The plan calls for sturdy plywood construction with an enamel finish. Use stencils to label each bin as to contents.

Can-Do Book For Women

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Although home building books are usually slanted toward men, women should not be put off in their desire to try a building project.

Some building jobs may look complicated or sound complicated when advice is given verbally. But if a woman acquires a good book and follows directions, she may be amazed at what she can do.

The two valuable assets in home building are a strong back and patience. If a woman has those she may need nothing more than a good book.

Now, Robert Scharff, well-known author of many do-it-yourself books, including a very useful one on wood finishing, has written "The Complete Book of Home Remodeling." Since he knows what he wants to say about a project, he conveys the message well and the clarity of his instructions can provide impetus.

As he points out, "there is not any job that a competent do-it-yourselfer cannot tackle." He also believes "many so-called amateur improvement projects are superior to professional ones because the amateur is doing the work on his own home."

How do you become competent? You practice working on little projects before you tackle big ones.

The book irones out many of those confusing irregularities in lumberyard parlance by providing charts showing the various kinds of boards, common defects in them and board foot content.

There are charts, too, on softwoods and hardwoods and the various kinds of nails required for jobs. Illustrations include common, casing, finishing nails.

There are measurements of nails diagrammed in inches and a table giving the approximate number per pound.

Another good illustration for beginners shows how to nail two pieces of wood together in various positions. Toenailing, clinching, skewing, staggering are all methods that may be required for a particular job.

Even if you never build a brick wall, you will like to know the names of the different patterns masons use in laying brick — Flemish, English, common and running bonds. Constructing a home bookcase

"merely requires the fitting of boards together at right angles in good and practical proportions," Scharff points out.

There are directions for fixed shelves, those that require brackets and for a patented method with adjustable metal standards and supports.

There is an excellent chapter in the book on painting and wall covering. Ditto a chapter on kitchens which tells you how to put it all together with illustrations and dimensions.

A particularly good service provided by the author is the area on wood decks.

Scharff provides not only pretty pictures, but offers excellent suggestions from laying out a deck in size and pattern to the kinds of noncorrosive nails to use. He tells how to fasten railing supports, how to build a deck seat and so on.

Q. — Part of the outside of our house has a stucco finish. I intend to paint it soon. There are a few cracks in it. Can I paint right over them or do they have to be repaired first?

A. — By all means, patch them first. Not doing so will permit the entry of moisture and the probability of further cracking. Besides, why go to all the trouble of painting your house and leaving unsightly scars on it?

Q. — We are covering our den walls with knotty pine plywood. We expect to stain it a very light tone, then put on varnish. Should this be done before the walls are put up or after?

A. — While it can be done before or after, the preference is before. Since you are looking

Old News Is Good News

"As stale as yesterday's news" is a common bromide. But the paper it's printed on isn't.

Recycled newsprint actually forms the basis of extremely effective insulation. By substantially reducing fuel and power consumption in homes and passing on the savings to the homeowner, yesterday's news helps combat the energy crisis.

Cellulose fiber insulation is made from recycled newsprint. The tiny wood pulp fibers, chemically treated to be flame retardant, are pneumatically injected into walls and either blown or hand poured in attic spaces over the ceiling. The individual fibers retain their natural breathing action by holding moisture in suspension.

HOME BUILDING & OTHER CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Insulation is important to today's homeowner because of the savings that can be achieved in heating and cooling costs. — up to 50 per cent according to some estimates —

The efficiency of insulation is measured by R-values, which is the capability of insulation to resist heat flow. The higher the R-value, the more effective the insulation.

Depending on climate and locality, the National Cellulose Insulation Manufacturers Association (NCIMA) suggests R-values in excess of minimums recommended for some areas.

The superior R-value of cellulose fiber insulation is recognized by public utilities, heating experts, fuel suppliers and federal agencies.

The news you are reading may be stale tomorrow, but the paper could be recycled into cellulose fiber insulation for the benefit of your family, your home and the nation in meeting the energy crisis.

Here's the Answer

Q. — We have just bought a house that is 105 years old. The living room is very large and covered with beautiful planks. My husband says there is only one layer of flooring and that a well-constructed floor should have at least two thicknesses, so he wants to add another floor on top of the present one. I hate to see such a fine looking floor covered, but I don't want to risk a condition that is dangerous. What do you suggest?

A. — I doubt whether the condition is dangerous simply because the floor is of a single thickness. I, like you, would be hesitant to cover a floor that is so beautiful after more than 100 years of life. If your husband has a good reason to suspect that the floor is unsteady, have it checked professionally. Sure, floors of more than a single thickness generally are stronger and preferable, but in the days when your home was built, many single-thickness floors were laid. How well they have endured depends on the materials used and the skill of the builder.

for a specific tone, better do a little testing first. It may be that the varnish itself will darken the wood sufficiently to meet your wishes. If not, put a little of the stain on a small area and wipe it off quickly. If it's still too light, allow the stain to remain a little longer, then wipe it. You will soon discover the amount of time necessary to achieve the shade you desire.

UPGRADING: Existing homes can be upgraded simply and effectively with cellulose fiber insulation to reduce heat loss and thereby meet today's urgent need to conserve fuel, according to National Cellulose Insulation Manufacturers Association. After removing portion of siding, applicator drills holes before injecting insulation into sidewall.

The two valuable assets in home building are a strong back and patience. If a woman has those she may need nothing more than a good book.

Now, Robert Scharff, well-known author of many do-it-yourself books, including a very useful one on wood finishing, has written "The Complete Book of Home Remodeling." Since he knows what he wants to say about a project, he conveys the message well and the clarity of his instructions can provide impetus.

As he points out, "there is not any job that a competent do-it-yourselfer cannot tackle." He also believes "many so-called amateur improvement projects are superior to professional ones because the amateur is doing the work on his own home."

How do you become competent? You practice working on little projects before you tackle big ones.

The book irons out many of those confusing irregularities in lumberyard parlance by providing charts showing the various kinds of boards, common defects in them and board foot content.

There are charts, too, on softwoods and hardwoods and the various kinds of nails required for jobs. Illustrations include common, casing, finishing nails.

There are measurements of nails diagrammed in inches and a table giving the approximate number per pound.

Another good illustration for beginners shows how to nail two pieces of wood together in various positions. Toenailing, clinching, skewing, staggering are all methods that may be required for a particular job.

Even if you never build a brick wall, you will like to know the names of the different patterns masons use in laying brick — Flemish, English, common and running bonds.

Constructing a home bookcase

"merely requires the fitting of boards together at right angles in good and practical proportions," Scharff points out.

There are directions for fixed shelves, those that require brackets and for a patented method with adjustable metal standards and supports.

There is an excellent chapter in the book on painting and wall covering. Ditto a chapter on kitchens which tells you how to put it all together with illustrations and dimensions.

A particularly good service provided by the author is the area on wood decks.

Scharff provides not only pretty pictures, but offers excellent suggestions from laying out a deck in size and pattern to the kinds of noncorrosive nails to use. He tells how to fasten railing supports, how to build a deck seat and so on.

Charges Dropped Against Activist

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The kidnap charges from which black activist Robert Williams fled the country 14 years ago were dropped Friday because the prosecutor said his principal witness was too ill to testify.

Meanwhile in New York, Williams' attorney William Kunstler said he would ask Union County authorities to drop charges against four others indicted with Williams in the Aug. 27, 1961 incident.

In announcing his decision, Union County Dist. Atty. Carroll Lowder attacked Williams, 49, as "a man who spent a lifetime speaking ill will, distrust and hatred among his fellow men."

Lowder said doctors had told him that Mrs. Bruce Stegall, 64, "is physically unable to testify in court and further there is no promise that her condition will improve."

Williams and the others were accused of kidnaping Mrs. Stegall and her husband during a night of racial tension. The Stegalls were released unharmed a few hours later.

Stegall died in January 1975. A family spokesman said Mrs. Stegall would have no comment. Earlier she had said she hoped Williams would never return and was unsure whether she would testify.

Williams, who could not be reached for comment, maintained he saved the Stegalls' lives and had nothing to do with their abduction.

Williams, a co-founder of the Revolutionary Action Movement and former head of the separatist Republic of New Africa, fled the country before he could be arrested and lived in Communist Cuba and China before returning to the United States in 1969.

He waged a six-year battle to avoid extradition. Last November the Michigan Supreme Court ordered him returned to Monroe, N.C., to face the charges.

He was released Dec. 2 after a $10,000 bond was posted in his behalf and returned to his Baldwin, Mich., home.

The others were convicted of kidnaping in 1964 but the following year their convictions were overturned by the North Carolina Supreme Court because blacks were barred from the local grand jury.

The three blacks and one white were reindicted but never brought to trial and their bonds were forfeited.

State PSC To Hear No-Overcharge Plan

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Public Service Commission will hear a plan Monday to make sure utilities aren't overcharging customers when they raise rates to cover higher fuel costs.

Commissioner William Ralls will ask at a formal meeting that electric companies be forced to reveal all fuel contracts to the PSC staff and prove they actually bought and used the fuel.

Ralls, the lone Democrat on the three-man commission, also will propose limits on the fuel adjustment clauses used by gas and electric utilities to automatically recoup higher fuel costs from their customers.

Since 1973, some $650 million has been paid by customers because of these clauses. That amount is almost double what customers have paid due to PSC-approved rate increases.

Ralls has often publicly criticized the clauses, saying they let utilities negotiate fuel contracts that are not the most thrifty, then pass the cost to customers without PSC review.

But Monday, Ralls will take his suggestions for the first time before the commission itself, charging the PSC staff has so far "only tinkered" with the clauses and not tried hard to reform them.

GOP Busy In Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The first of the grassroots confrontations between President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is in Iowa Monday, and Republican leaders there are counting on a big turnout. President Ford's top advisers say they don't expect trouble, but key campaigners for Ford nevertheless have been busy gearing up for the precinct caucuses. The Republican and Democratic party caucuses in Iowa, during which delegates to the national political conventions will be picked, are the first in the nation.

Postal Service Affirms Airmail's Waste Of Cash

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An undetermined number of people still are paying for airmail postage even though the Postal Service says it is a waste of money.

The Postal Service upgraded first-class mail Oct. 11 to the same service standards as airmail, meaning regular first class mail moves just as fast as that marked airmail.

"First-class mail now is the same thing that airmail once was. If you put airmail postage on a letter it will be handled the same way as if you only put first-class postage on the letter," a Postal Service spokeswoman said.

However, the Postal Service still has a separate rate for airmail because of legal limitations, she said. In order to drop the airmail rate, the service would have to go to the Postal Rate Commission and ask to drop the service, a slow process.

"We found it easier just to put out the word that airmail is a waste of money," she said.

The airmail rate is now 17 cents per letter, compared to 13 cents for first-class letters. Airmail postcards are 14 cents, compared to nine cents for first-class postcards.

VA Hospital Going Back To Normal

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Operations at the Veterans Administration Hospital here will return to normal next week, five months after a series of murders and attempted murders at the facility.

Hospital officials said Friday they will drop most special security measures taken following a series of mysterious breathing failures in July and early August.

"For all intents and purposes, we are eliminating most of the increased security that we had," said Gary Calhoun, a hospital administrator.

Twenty nurses, two respiratory therapists and five clerks were added to the hospital staff last summer after the FBI launched a probe of the res-

LMC Enrollment Ahead Of 1975

More than 1,000 students already have registered in advance for Lake Michigan College second semester courses, an increase of some 24 per cent over last year, with two more registration days yet ahead, Jan. 21 and 22, according to Dr. Thomas P. McCourt, LMC registrar.

To date, 1,017 students already have enrolled for LMC spring semester classes compared to 820 at the same time last year which would indicate, according to McCourt, that the college will experience a record-breaking second semester this year.

The two remaining registration periods are from 4 to 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 21, for students enrolling in 11 semester hours or fewer, and from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 22, for all students, both full-time and part-time.

Full-time students enrolling on Jan. 22 should do so at times indicated by initial letter of last name: U, V, W, X, Y, Z — 9 to 9:30 a.m.; Q, R, S, T — 9:30 to 10 a.m.; M, N, O, P — 10 to 10:30 a.m.; J, K, L — 10:30 to 11 a.m.; G, H, I — 11 to 11:30 a.m.; D, E, F — 11:30 a.m. to noon; and A, B, C — noon to 12:30 p.m.

Some 311 different courses in 46 academic areas will be offered second semester by LMC with 147 of them to be taught at night on the Napier Avenue campus. An additional 46 classes also will be offered at night at LMC's nine off-campus educational centers at Allegan, Buchanan, Cassopolis, Covert, Fennville, Gallien, Niles, River Valley and South Haven high schools.

LMC second semester classes will begin during the week of Monday, Jan. 26.

Noise Controls Are Tightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Noise regulations proposed by the Environmental Protection Agency could virtually end efforts to use the Concorde supersonic passenger jets on flights between Europe and the United States.

The EPA on Friday reversed its stand on noise controls in a move that will increase pressure on the Department of Transportation to reject British and French applications to land six Concorde flights daily in the United States.

VA Hospital Going Back To Normal

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Operations at the Veterans Administration Hospital here will return to normal next week, five months after a series of murders and attempted murders at the facility.

Hospital officials said Friday they will drop most special security measures taken following a series of mysterious breathing failures in July and early August.

"For all intents and purposes, we are eliminating most of the increased security that we had," said Gary Calhoun, a hospital administrator.

Twenty nurses, two respiratory therapists and five clerks were added to the hospital staff last summer after the FBI launched a probe of the respiratory arrests. A decision on whether these workers will be laid off was put off until Monday.

FBI investigators believe the 40 breathing failures occurred after someone injected the patients with Pavulon, a muscle-paralyzing drug.

Mass Slaying Jury Resumes Deliberation

NORTH PLATTE, Neb. (AP) — A jury of seven women and five men resumes deliberations today in the trial of Erwin Charles Simants, accused of killing six members of a neighborhood family.

The jury met for about 1 1/2 hours Friday night after Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart delivered his final instructions.

Simants is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in committing or attempting sexual assault. He entered pleas of innocent by reason of insanity to all charges.

The three adults and three children, all members of the Henry Kellie family, were shot to death Oct. 18 at the Kellie home, next door to where Simants lived with his sister and brother-in-law.

Stuart told the jury they should consider intoxication, diminished mental capacity and the question of Simants' sanity in reaching verdicts.

The trial began Jan. 5.

A court-imposed "gag" order on pre-trial news coverage set up a constitutional confrontation which pushed the case into nationwide prominence.

A county judge issued an order barring newsmen from reporting certain aspects of the preliminary proceedings, which were held in open court.

Stuart dissolved the lower court's order but implemented one of his own under which newsmen, although they were aware of a statement by Simants admitting he killed the six, were not able to report it.

A coalition of Nebraska news organizations, appealed the order to the Nebraska Supreme Court and to the U.S. Supreme Court, which is expected to hear oral arguments this spring.

During the trial, the prosecution played a tape-recorded interview with law enforcement officers in which Simants admitted the killings.

In his closing argument, Asst. Public Defender Leonard Vyhalek said Simants' mental capacity at the time of the killings was the only issue to be decided. He asked the jury to return a verdict of innocent by reason of insanity on each of the counts against Simants, 30.

Vyhalek said the defense had shown that Simants "was suffering from a severe psychotic episode," was a longtime schizophrenic, is retarded and was intoxicated at the time of the killings.

In rebuttal, Deputy Lincoln County Atty. Marvin Holscher said the defense failed to prove that Simants did not know what he was doing and asked the jury to "hold him responsible for these acts."

The prosecution's final rebuttal witnesses were two Nebraska psychiatrists, Dr. Emmett M. Kenney of Omaha and Dr. Eli Chesson of Lincoln, both of whom took issue with nearly every defense argument concerning Simants' mental condition.

MSU Cager Pleads Innocent To Assault

MASON — Michigan State basketball player Edgar Wilson, 20, of Dowagiac, was arraigned Thursday before Mason District Court Judge William Reid on assault and battery charges and released on his own recognizance.

Wilson pleaded innocent to charges of assaulting a waitress last Sunday in an East Lansing restaurant. He is alleged to have punched Linda K. Veltma in the face after she spilled soup in his lap.

MSU athletic officials call the 6-5 senior forward a model student with no past record of trouble.

No trial date was set.

'Red Squad' Ordered Out Of Business

State Police to "cease and desist" in carrying out the 1950 law that authorized creation of the Subversive Activities Unit to investigate anyone advocating industrial or political reform through terrorism.

The order directs the State Police to stop gathering further data, and to contact all other state and law enforcement agencies asking them to destroy any information they received from squad files.

The State Police were directed to reassign all employees assigned to the squad.

Brown's order came after the Attorney General's office, representing the State Police, told the judge it agreed with the arguments in the suit.

"I'm very happy to see that as of today the 'Red Squad' has gone out of business," said attorney Zoltan Ferency of the Human Rights Party who argued the suit in court.

The party filed the suit last April.

Still pending is another suit against the squad filed in Wayne County. There, a judge has ordered that the files be preserved pending his ruling on a suit filed on behalf of 13 persons and all others illegally investigated by the squad. His order protecting the files is being appealed in the state appeals court by the Attorney General.

The 60-day waiting period defers to an argument by attorneys in the Wayne County suit who said that if the files were immediately destroyed, their evidence would go down the drain.

Brown said the 1950 statutes "subvert the rights of individuals ... act to invade their privacy ... act to inhibit their free assembly and petition of their government for redress."

Included in the statutes Brown declared unconstitutional was a law making it a felony for any person to display a red flag.

"Ridiculous," Brown said in reference to the statute.

Brown said that while the statutes were enacted to protect the public, "They actually acted to inhibit the lawful, constitutional, and God-given rights of individuals."

The State Police have said the files should be immediately destroyed because informants named in the files could be endangered, or release of unsubstantiated information could be embarrassing to the person named.

State Sen. Basil Brown, D-Highland Park, and Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, had written Brown asking him to keep the files intact for six months pending legislative investigation.

The State Police have said there is no way to be sure how widely disseminated "Red Squad" information is. Although the State Police are allowed by law to release information only to other law enforcement agencies, other agencies, such as local police departments, are not under such restraints.

George Corsetti and Richard Sobel, attorneys for plaintiffs in the Wayne County suit, repeated previous assertions that Detroit Police files on individuals have found their way into the hands of Chrysler Corp. The two also claimed that State Police files have been given to people's employers.

Social Security Hike Seen Likely

$3 billion net loss in 1975, and the loss is expected to climb to $5.4 billion in 1976 and $5.7 billion in 1977.

Government analysts have said that unless new financing is available, the fund could be entirely depleted by the end of this decade.

Ford's over-all budget for fiscal 1977, which begins next Oct. 1, will provide for expenditures of $394 billion, and revenues of $351 billion, leaving a deficit for the year of $43 billion.

Although the deficit would be the second largest since World War II, it will be below the estimated record deficit of $70 billion this year.

Ford also said the increase in spending is $28 billion less than it would have been without action to restrain spending in 1977.

Ford will tell Congress the nation should be able to have a balanced budget within three years.

Other provisions of the budget will include:

- An increase in defense expenditures from the current ceiling of about $92 billion to about $101 billion, which Ford will say is necessary to maintain a strong defense posture.
- Consolidation of various grants to the states in the areas of medical care, child nutrition programs, education for handicapped children and social services for the elderly.
- A tax decrease of $10 billion to carry out the over-all $28 billion permanent tax reduction proposed by Ford in October.
- Increased contributions for the Medicare program for the elderly with an expansion of coverage for serious illnesses.
- An elderly person would not have to pay more than $500 for hospital or nursing care in a single year, nor more than $290 for physicians' services.
- Similar Medicare proposals have been included in the two previous budgets but failed to attract a congressional sponsor because of opposition from powerful lobbying groups representing the elderly.
- The plan would cost 87 per cent of Medicare beneficiaries more money out of their own pockets when they entered the hospital and would benefit only 3 per cent by serving as a type of catastrophic insurance, according to the elderly.

Shipment Of Corn 'Garbage'

officials left Washington for New Orleans to investigate, other officials met with representatives of Cook Industries, based in Memphis.

Clark did not say who was responsible for the misgrading.

"In one hold of the ship, after licensed private inspectors had certified the grain clean and had assigned it a relatively high grade, federal supervisory inspectors found seashells the size of quarters, a pile of golf ball-sized rocks that would fill a bushel basket and substantial amounts of broken kernels and other foreign matter," the Iowa senator said in a statement released by his Washington office.

"Another hold was filled with sour and musty corn, conditions which should have resulted in rejection by the licensed inspector," he said. "A third hold disclosed a pile of corn screenings almost 25 feet high and another contained a pile of pure corn dust that I am told had come out for more than 10,000 cubic feet."

officials left Washington for New Orleans to investigate, other officials met with representatives of Cook Industries, based in Memphis.

Clark did not say who was responsible for the misgrading.

"In one hold of the ship, after licensed private inspectors had certified the grain clean and had assigned it a relatively high grade, federal supervisory inspectors found seashells the size of quarters, a pile of golf ball-sized rocks that would fill a bushel basket and substantial amounts of broken kernels and other foreign matter," the Iowa senator said in a statement released by his Washington office.

"Another hold was filled with sour and musty corn, conditions which should have resulted in rejection by the licensed inspector," he said. "A third hold disclosed a pile of corn screenings almost 25 feet high and another contained a pile of pure corn dust that I am told had come out to more than 10,000 cubic feet."

Social Security Hike Seen Likely

$3 billion net loss in 1975, and the loss is expected to climb to $5.4 billion in 1976 and $5.7 billion in 1977.

Government analysts have said that unless new financing is available, the fund could be entirely depleted by the end of this decade.

Ford's over-all budget for fiscal 1977, which begins next Oct. 1, will provide for expenditures of $394 billion, and revenues of $351 billion, leaving a deficit for the year of $43 billion.

Although the deficit would be the second largest since World War II, it will be below the estimated record deficit of $70 billion this year.

Ford also said the increase in spending is $28 billion less than it would have been without action to restrain spending in 1977.

Ford will tell Congress the nation should be able to have a balanced budget within three years.

Other provisions of the budget will include:

—An increase in defense expenditures from the current ceiling of about $82 billion to about $101 billion, which Ford will say is necessary to maintain a strong defense posture.

—Consolidation of various grants to the states in the areas of medical care, child nutrition programs, education for handicapped children and social services for the elderly.

—A tax decrease of $10 billion to carry out the over-all $28 billion permanent tax reduction proposed by Ford in October.

—Increased contributions for the Medicare program for the elderly with an expansion of coverage for serious illnesses. An elderly person would not have to pay more than $500 for hospital or nursing care in a single year, nor more than $250 for physicians' services.

Similar Medicare proposals have been included in the two previous budgets but failed to attract a congressional sponsor because of opposition from powerful lobbying groups representing the elderly.

The plan would cost 97 per cent of Medicare beneficiaries more money out of their own pockets when they entered the hospital and would benefit only 3 per cent by serving as a type of catastrophic insurance, according to critics.

ing to government statistics.

This fiscal year, it would have reduced federal Medicare spending by an estimated $1.3 billion.

Unlike the current Medicare system, which charges a beneficiary $104 for the first day of hospitalization and then picks up the rest of the bill through the 60th day, the proposal would charge patients for each day in the hospital at a rate equal to 10 per cent of costs above the present deductible amount.

Streaking Dutch Drop St. Joe From Big Seven Lead

HOLLAND — Streaking Holland knocked St. Joseph out of the Big Seven lead here Friday night.

The Dutch remained unbeaten with a seven-game winning streak by toppling the Bears 70-61 behind excellent shooting and an overwhelming rebounding edge.

Holland drilled 58 per cent of its shots — the best against St. Joe this season — while limiting the Bears to 19 rebounds — their lowest total of the campaign.

"We played our best all-around game of the season," declared Holland coach Don Piersma of the tilt which drew the largest Dutch crowd of the season.

"They were getting inside too much and also getting the occasional second and third shots," added St. Joseph coach George Gaunder on Holland's deadly shooting. He pointed to charts which showed Holland had 11 second half buckets near the basket.

And on his team's poor rebounding against the taller Dutch, Gaunder added: "That kind of tells the story there. We had only five offensive rebounds, so we got one shot. They played a man-to-man defense, but they collapsed."

Holland, now 5-1 in the Big Seven and 8-1 overall, put four players in double figures. Loren Schrotenboer, a 6-5 center, netted 20 points and forward Dave Van Wylen had a career-high 15. Guard Todd De Young added 13 and 6-7 forward Dennis Lawson contributed 12.

St. Joseph, now 4-1 in the league and 8-3 on the season, got 17 points from center Henry Follman and 16 from guard Cory Benford.

"If we would have won and there would have been a game ball award, Henry would get it," noted Gaunder. In addition to his 17 points, Follman also had six interceptions and five blocked shots.

Holland jumped off to a 12-9 lead after the first quarter and led 30-23 at halftime and 52-38 entering the last quarter.

Holland was 10-for-10 in free throw shooting the first half, and Van Wylen scored nine of his 15 points in the third quarter.

The Dutch took their biggest leads of the night early in the fourth quarter at 58-40 and 68-50.

"It just wasn't our turn tonight," concluded Gaunder. "Holland has a fine ball club. They've got size, and the thing is that size can shoot."

Holland posted its 58 per cent field goal mark by meshing 27 of 46 shots. St. Joe ad a 40 per cent mark (26 of 64). At the free throw lines, the Dutch hit 16 of 22 and the Bears nine of 13.

Holland's rebounding edge stood at 30 to 19, with Schrotenboer having 12. St. Joe did have the best floor game, with 13 turnovers compared to Holland's 22.

St. Joseph did win the junior varsity preliminary 74-53, with Paul Knuth getting 18 points. Kevin Beertuis had 15 for Holland.

St. Joe jayvees, now 8-3, led 33-21 at halftime. The little

BH Awesome In 108-68 Victory

Tigers Run Past Sailors

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer

Benton Harbor has finally arrived...and then some.

Tiger coach Earl McKee has been looking for team play and his team's running game all season. And Friday night both fell into place perfectly. Benton Harbor rolled up the highest score in southwestern Michigan this season in bombing Muskegon Mona Shores 108-68 before more than 2,500 fans at the Colfax Gym.

"We finally started running and that was the story," McKee said. "I knew if we began to run that we have the guys who can do the job."

"It took us eight games to finally blend it together and I believe we had it tonight. I believe there are a couple of teams that we could have been ahead of if we had played like this. We have ability all over this team. We just have to blend."

The Tigers put on an awesome display of rebounding, floor play and shooting in posting their highest point total in two years.

The easy victory, coupled with Traverse City's 59-52 upset win over previously unbeaten Grand Haven, also thrust Benton Harbor back into the thick of the Lake Michigan Athletic Conference race. The Tigers are now 2-2 in LMAC play and trail Muskegon Catholic Central and Grand Haven (both 3-1) by one game.

Benton Harbor has now won four of its last five games to up its overall mark to 5-4 heading into tonight's game at Kalamazoo Central. Mona Shores fell to 0-4 in the league and 2-8 overall.

Senior forward Russell Steele put together his finest game of the season, scoring 27 points and pulling down 22 rebounds.

"Russell's rebounding was the difference," McKee said. "He still likes to rely on his jump shot too quickly. But his rebounding made him a much better ballplayer."

Steele and Bennie Bowers, who tossed in 20 points and had 14 rebounds, took command of the boards at both ends of the floor to put the Tiger fast break into action. Guards Ray Thompson and Steve McNutt took it from there.

Thompson played perhaps the finest floor game of his Benton Harbor career, scoring 10 points, but more importantly handing out 12 assists.

"This is the kind of Ray we need," McKee said. "We have to have him getting the ball down the floor and setting people up. He has even greater ability than he showed tonight and that's the role he has to play."

Every Tiger played in the rout and only two of the 14 failed to score. McNutt and Charles DeFrance each tossed in 10

LMC Double OT Winner

Taylor connected on his game-winning five-footer after a feed from David Thomas.

Taylor, a 6-3 sophomore from Benton Harbor high, ended with 22 points to pace LMC, which put five players in twin digits. Eddie Albert ended with 19, Jimmy Bridgman 15, Thomas 12 and Vern Reynolds 10.

"We played a smart game," expressed LMC coach Art Crump. "We used our heads and cut down our mental mistakes. We kept our composure when it counted. It was a tremendous team effort. Start to finish it was the best we've played this year. We had to play that way...the odds were against us."

The game was close all the way with a 29-29 tie at the half, 67-67 after regulation and 77-77 after the first overtime. The Indians had to make up a huge free throw deficit to earn the win. LMC was four of eight at the foul lines to Grand Rapids' 21 of 24.

The Indians dumped in 43 of 82 shots for a hot 52 per cent from the field.

Albert, who came off the bench, also ended with eight key steals.

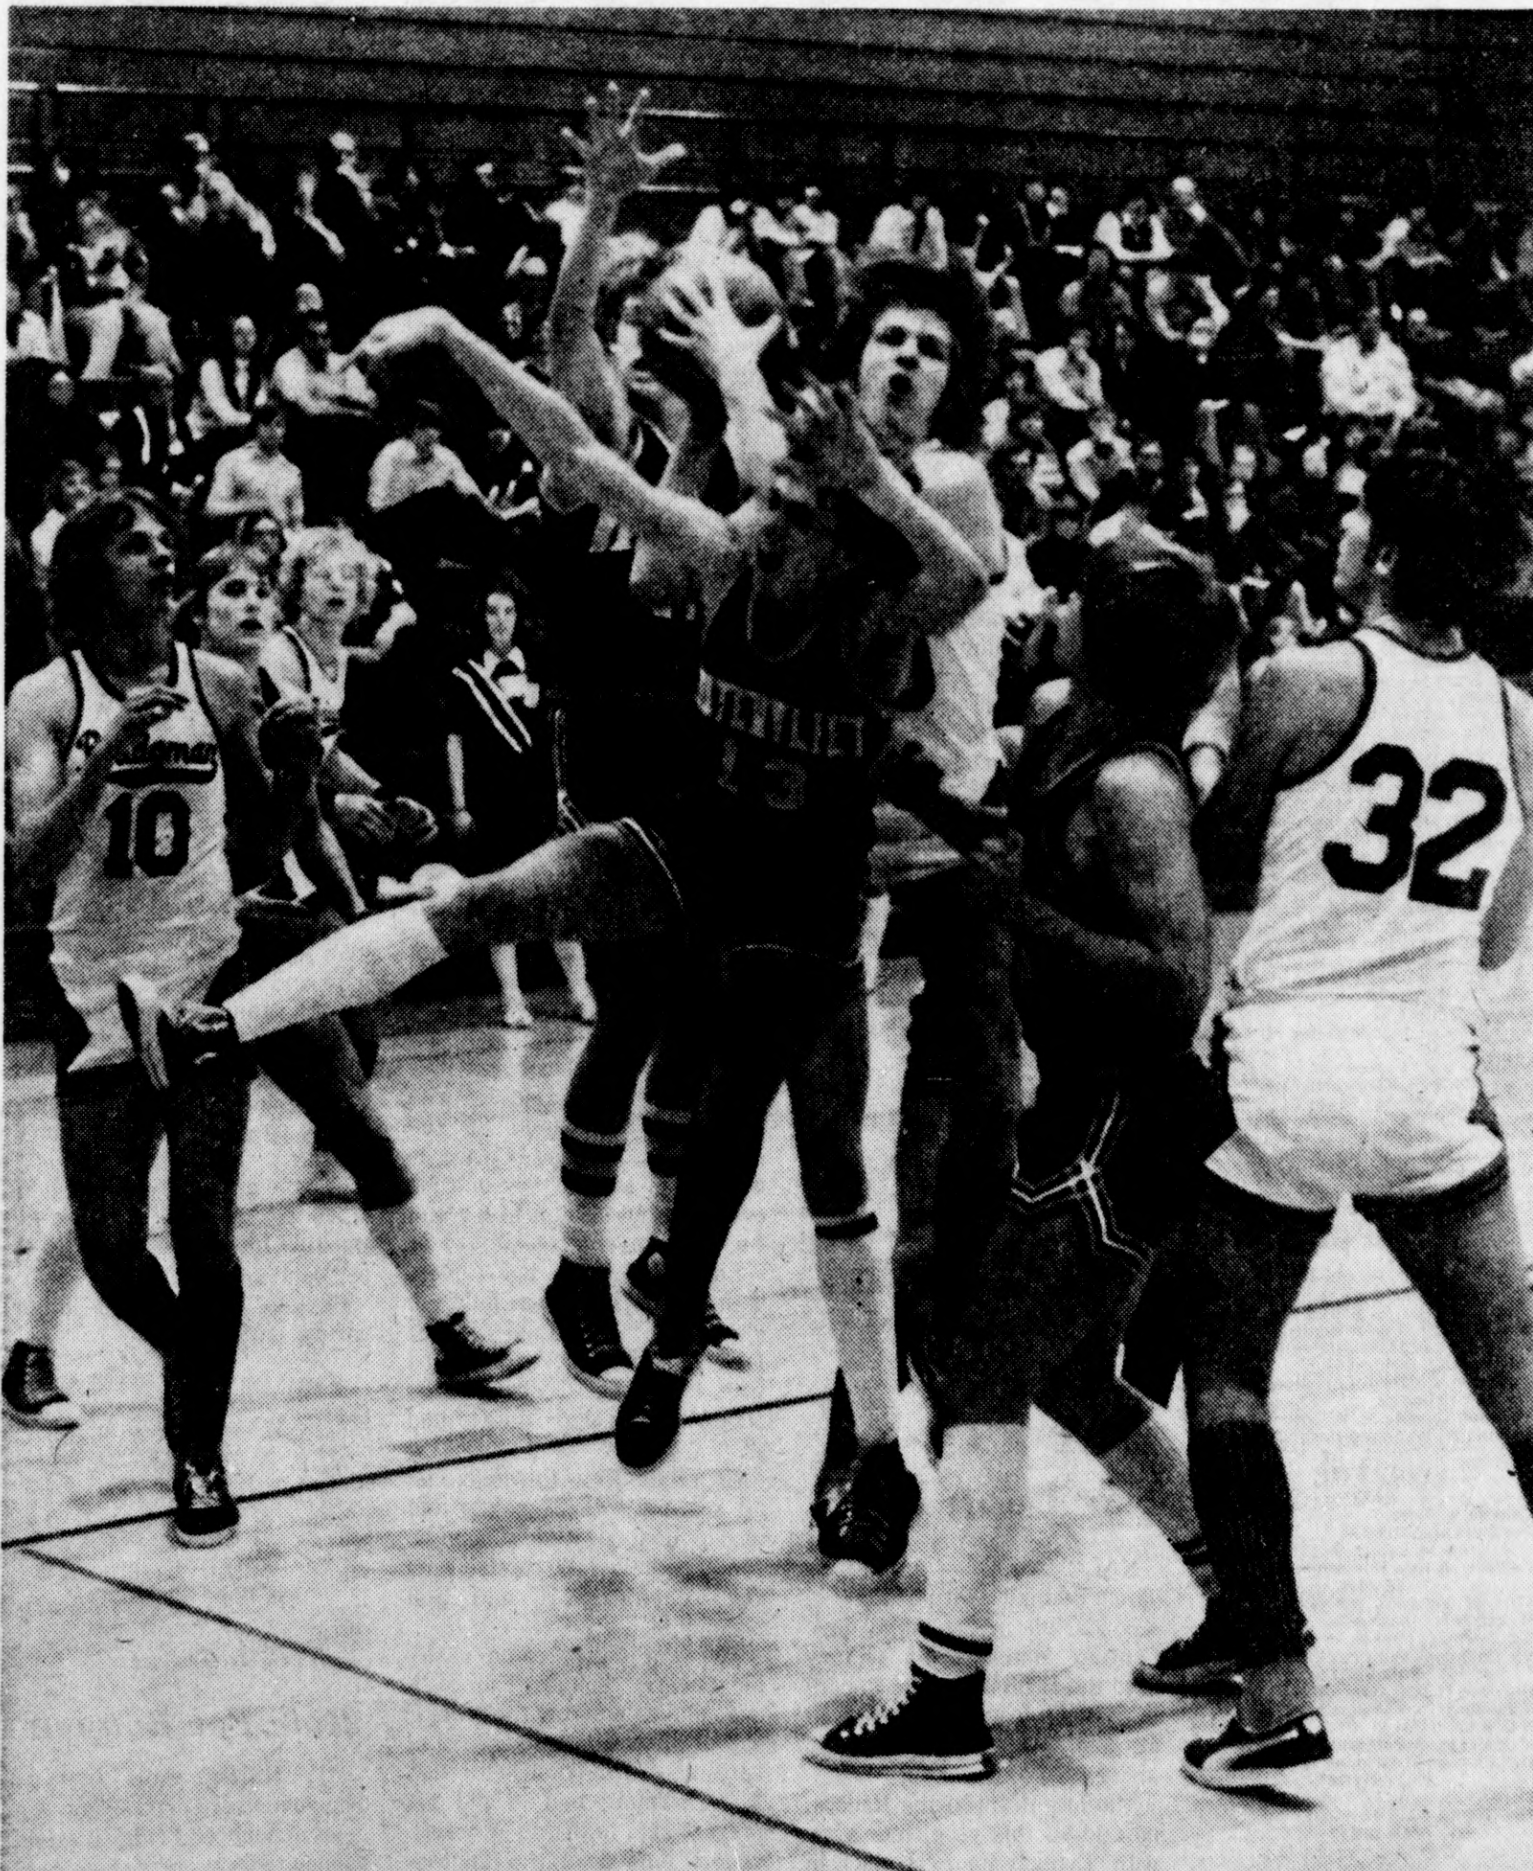

Tom Phillipow led Grand Rapids with 28 points. LMC is now 6-9 overall and 3-3 in the Western Division of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association. The Indians' win Wednesday along with Friday's win marks the first time this year they have put back-to-back victories together.

LMC hosts Davenport tonight in a non-league affair.

Gael Defense Licks Lakers Catholic Held To Lowest Score In History

By JOHN VANDEN HEED
Sports Editor

GALLEN — A hustling Galien defense held Lake Michigan Catholic to the lowest score in Laker history here Friday night while putting the Gaels back into the thick of the Red Arrow race.

Galien's 2-3 zone defense carried the Gaels to a 44-32 triumph and left both teams with one league loss.

Lake Michigan Catholic hit just 25 per cent of its field goals while scoring four fewer points than in the 55-36 defeat at the hands of Detroit St. Andrew earlier this season. Prior to the current campaign, the fewest points by a Laker five was in a 53-41 loss to Eau Claire in the 1971-72 season.

"We really did play some defense," exclaimed smiling Galien coach Mike Heckathorn after Friday's crucial victory. "Obviously, that was the key to the game."

"Our guards really hustled on that zone. They really moved back and forth across the lane and kept their hands up. When they did shoot, (Don) Kooy and (Rick) Busher got the rebounds."

Lake Michigan Catholic coach Al Nixon knew his Lakers shot poorly, but he didn't believe Galien's defense was entirely the reason.

"I didn't think that it was bad shot selection...the damn thing (ball) just wouldn't go through the hoop tonight. Something was pushing it out."

"I think we missed a lot of them early in the game and the kids got overly concerned about it. And it was obvious our kids were tight...we had two air balls on free throws."

Galien, now 4-1 in the Red Arrow and 8-1 overall with a six-game winning streak, made just 32 per cent of its field goals while getting only one more basket than Catholic. But the Gaels were deadly at the free throw lines, making 12 of 17 (71 per cent) compared to two for five (40 per cent) for the Lakers.

Kooy, a 6-2 forward and the biggest Gael, and guard Dale Luther again led Galien with 14 points apiece. Kooy also had 17 rebounds while Busher pulled off eight caroms.

Lake Michigan Catholic, now 6-1 in the league and 8-4 on the season, got 10 points from Don Altie in a reserve role.

Both coaches agreed the final minutes of the first half played a big part in the outcome of the game.

The Lakers missed golden scoring opportunities, scored just two points in the final 5½ minutes of the second quarter and went off the floor at halftime trailing 21-16.

Catholic also got just two points during the final five minutes of the third quarter and went into the fourth period trailing 29-20.

Galien secured the victory over the final eight minutes by making seven of eight free throws and four of six field goals.

The final victory edge was the largest point margin of the game. The biggest Laker leads

Valley Stuns Cass
As Johnson Stars

THREE OAKS — River Valley combined the scoring of Greg Johnson with some stingy defense to turn back Cassopolis 55-47 here Friday night.

Johnson, a 6-2 senior forward, pumped in a career-high 28 points, 20 in the first half, while the tough Mustang defense was holding Cass, the fourth highest scoring team in the area, to a season-low point total.

River Valley turned the trick without a point from Dave North, who entered the game with a 17.6 average overall and a Blossomland leading 22.4 average. North was saddled with foul woes and eventually fouled out.

While Johnson led the Mustangs in the first half, Jeff Schmidt and Kevin Griffendorf help out considerably in the last half. Schmidt ended with nine of his 13 points in the last half.

The game was close most of the way with Valley holding a 14-10 first-period edge. Cass caught the hosts and earned a 30-30 tie at the half, then Valley carried a thin 42-41 edge into the last period.

Valley, which went into a delay with five minutes to go, outscored Cass 13-6 in the finale. The Mustangs made three of five shots from the field and seven of 13 foul tosses as the Rangers resorted to fouls. Cass could only manage three of 14 afield in the last eight minutes.

"It was really a team victory," related Mustang coach Jerry Schaffer. "We played good team defense and offensively played real well together."

Johnson had the hot hand in the first half and then Schmidt and Griffendorf got some key buckets the last half. Mason (Don) also did a good job off the bench.

Cass, averaging 72.0 going into the contest, got 18 points from Gary Young and 14 from Alvin Vanzant but little help elsewhere.

"We couldn't score...River Valley's defense just put the whammy on us," added Cass coach Bob Follett. "We couldn't put the ball in the basket."

Late Scoring Stops Watervliet

By JERRY DYKSTRA

Staff Sports Writer

BRIDGMAN — Dave Zilke is Bridgman's defensive specialist.

But Friday the 8-0 senior turned his attention to offense with winning results.

Zilke poured in the Bees' last seven points of the game to keep Watervliet at bay and give Bridgman a hard-earned 58-54 Red Arrow victory.

Zilke, who carried an 8.1 average into the game, finished with 11 points with seven coming in the final 3:27 of the contest.

Zilke is our hustler and defensive specialist, actually," noted Bee coach Doug Hendricks. "But his free throws and big tip were the keys in the game."

Zilke got plenty of scoring help from his teammates as Bob Linke and Tom Meredith both sank 12 points and Howard Mutz and John Jones eight each.

Peksky Watervliet, which kept on the heels of Bridgman all night, had the game's high scorer in Ken Marzka with 19 points while Tom Hutchinson added 14 and Jim Weaver 12.

The win was the Bees' third in a row and puts their Red Arrow mark at 4-3. Watervliet drops to 3-4 in loop play and out of serious title contention.

"That's three in a row since Christmas. I'm pleased," added Hendricks. "We start four juniors and one senior, so we're a young club. With that inexperience we lost to three good clubs early in the year (Berrien Springs, Lake Michigan Catholic and Galesburg)."

"I think a close game was good for us... it's really the first one all year. But I was disappointed we didn't put them away when we had the chance. And I wasn't pleased with our rebounding."

The Bees, whose biggest lead was eight points (twice), held a 14-11 first-quarter lead and 32-27 at intermission. But the Panthers took their only lead of the game at 3:58 of the third period on two free throws by Hutchinson Linke then pooped in three short jumpers to hand the Bees a 42-39 edge going into the final.

Watervliet, down by eight points at 5:26 of the last period, fought back and trailed only 54-52 with 57 seconds remaining.

Zilke, the lone senior starter for the Bees, then hit a free throw. He missed the second attempt with 32 seconds left but grabbed the ball and put in a 12-footer to put a handle on the win. He later sank a free throw with seven ticks to go.

"We just didn't do mechanically right things when it counted," moaned Watervliet coach Ken Marzka. "And at the end their rebounding hurt us."

"This was a pivotal game for us in the conference. I felt a win would have given us momentum for the rest of the year."

A key factor in the outcome was the work of Bridgman subs Jones, who drew Hendricks' praise, and Neal Smith. The two combined for 11 points with seven coming in the last period. Smith came up with a three-point play early in the final.

Both teams displayed coolish shooting with Bridgman 26 of 68 afield for 38 per cent and six of 18 from the foul lines. Watervliet was 21 of 63 for 33 per cent over the Bee zone and 12 of 21 in foul losses.

Bridgman, with a decided height advantage, only held a 40-34 margin on the boards. Mutz, who got into foul trouble, pulled down nine caroms and Linke and Wolf eight each.

Weaver had 12 rebounds and Hutchinson 11 for the Panthers.

Bridgman made 20 floor mistakes, Watervliet 19.

The Panthers' Jon Hinkleman saw only limited action after battling the flu all week. He has a 7.8 average. The Bees' Mike Schaller, who dressed but didn't play, is still recovering from a bad knee.

The Bees, who have given up only an average of 82.0 points in the three-game win streak, are now 6-3 overall while Watervliet slides to 5-5 after winning its first four tilts of the season.

The Bridgman junior varsity also continued its string with its 45-51 win in the preliminary. The Bees, who have ripped off eight straight, got 18 points from Bill Moreland and Phil Ott and 10 from Joe Jones. Jon Hiler hit 18 for the Panthers.

Late Scoring Stops Watervliet

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

BRIDGMAN — Dave Zilke is Bridgman's defensive specialist.

But Friday the 6-0 senior turned his attention to offense with winning results.

Zilke poured in the Bees' last seven points of the game to keep Watervliet at bay and give Bridgman a hard-earned 58-54 Red Arrow victory.

Zilke, who carried an 8.1 average into the game, finished with 11 points with seven coming in the final 3:27 of the contest.

"Zilke is our hustler and defensive specialist, actually," noted Bee coach Doug Hendricks. "But his free throws and big tip were the keys in the game."

Zilke got plenty of scoring help from his teammates as Bob Linke and Tom Meredith both sank 12 points and Howard Mutz and John Jones eight each.

Pesky Watervliet, which kept on the heels of Bridgman all night, had the game's high scorer in Ken Marzka with 19 points while Tom Hutchinson added 14 and Jim Weaver 12.

The win was the Bees' third in a row and puts their Red Arrow mark at 4-3. Watervliet drops to 3-4 in loop play and out of serious title contention.

"That's three in a row since Christmas...I'm pleased," added Hendricks. "We start four juniors and one senior, so we're a young club. With that inexperience we lost to three good clubs early in the year (Berrien Springs, Lake Michigan Catholic and Galien)."

"I think a close game was good for us...it's really the first one all year. But I was disappointed we didn't put them away when we had the chance. And I wasn't pleased with our rebounding."

The Bees, whose biggest lead was eight points (twice), held a 14-11 first-quarter lead and 32-27 at intermission. But the Panthers took their only lead of the game at 1:58 of the third period on two free throws by Hutchinson Linke then popped in three short jumpers to hand the Bees a 42-39 edge going into the final.

Watervliet, down by eight points at 5:26 of the last period, fought back and trailed only 54-52 with 57 seconds remaining.

Zilke, the lone senior starter for the Bees, then hit a free throw. He missed the second attempt with 32 seconds left but grabbed the ball and put in a 12-footer to put a handle on the game. He later sank a free throw with seven ticks to go.

"We just didn't do mechanically right things when it counted," moaned Watervliet coach Ken Marzka. "And at the end their rebounding hurt us."

"This was a pivotal game for us in the conference. I felt we would have given us momentum for the rest of the year."

A key factor in the outcome was the work of Bridgman subs Jones, who drew Hendricks' praise, and Neal Smith. The two combined for 11 points with seven coming in the last period. Smith came up with a three-point play early in the final.

Both teams displayed coolish shooting with Bridgman 26 of 68 afield for 38 per cent and six of 18 from the foul lines. Watervliet was 21 of 63 for 33 per cent over the Bee zone and 12 of 21 in foul tosses.

Bridgman, with a decided height advantage, only held a 40-34 margin on the boards. Mutz, who got into foul trouble, pulled down nine caroms and Linke and Wolf 12 each. Weaver had 12 rebounds and Hutchinson 11 for the Panthers.

Bridgman made 20 foul mistakes. Watervliet 19.

The Panthers' Jon Hinkleman saw only limited action after battling the flu all week. He has a 7.8 average. The Bees' Mike Schaller, who dressed but didn't play, is still recovering from a bad knee.

The Bees, who have given up only an average of 52.0 points in the three-game win streak, are now 6-3 overall while Watervliet slides to 5-5 after winning its first four tilts of the season.

The Bridgman junior varsity also continued its string with its 64-51 win in the preliminary.

The Bees, who have ripped off eight straight, got 18 points from Bill Moreland and Phil Ott and 10 from Joe Jones. Jon Hiler hit 18 for the Panthers.

Bison '5' Shoots 29%, Nips Indians

NEW BUFFALO — New Buffalo shot only 29 per cent from the field but still had enough to chalk up its first Red Arrow win of the season here Friday night.

The Bisons, outscoring Hartford 18-13 in the last period, downed the Indians 55-50 in the battle of league tailenders.

New Buffalo is now 1-6 in Red Arrow play while Hartford, which has lost 18 straight loop games, falls to 0-6. New Buffalo also has beaten Hartford nine times in a row.

Mark D'Amato and John Miller both hit some key shots at the end to spark the Bisons. D'Amato ended with 16 points and Miller 13 while Fritz Moss had 10.

"Moss and Preston (Howard) did good jobs off the bench," commented Bison coach Mike Oaks. "We moved to a zone the second half. Our guards moved real well in it and they had trouble shooting from outside. We held them to 20 points the last half...that was obviously the ball game."

"We shot 50 per cent last week and lost, so it evens out I guess."

Hartford placed Duane Toney and Phil Mireles in double figures with 10 points each.

Both team hit 19 field goals with Hartford taking 66 shots for 29 per cent afield and Hartford 47 for 40 per cent. Free throws proved decisive with the Bisons dumping in 17 of 30 to the Indians' 12 of 23.

New Buffalo held a 42-39 board edge with Jim Wold getting 12 rebounds and Moss nine. Toney had 11 for Hartford and turned in a strong overall game.

New Buffalo made 25 turnovers, Hartford 32.

New Buffalo won the jayvee game 67-57 with John Tuszynski hitting 18 points for the winners.

Goodwin, Dubas Spur Rams

SOUTH HAVEN — Nate Goodwin and Dave Dubas came off the bench to spark a second-quarter rally, leading South Haven to a 73-57 win over Comstock here Friday night.

The Rams trailed 25-20 after the first quarter, but outscored Comstock 15-5 in the second quarter for a 35-30 halftime edge. From there unbeaten South Haven was never headed.

The win was the ninth straight this season for the Rams, seven coming in conference play. Comstock fell to 1-6 and 1-9, respectively.

Goodwin, normally a starter, came off the bench in the second quarter to help get South Haven going. He finished with 17 points to lead the Rams. But it was Dubas who really got things started for South Haven.

"Dubas went in and really got us moving," South Haven coach M. H. White said. "He had three key interceptions within two minutes and four rebounds."

South Haven broke the game open in the third quarter, outscoring Comstock 23-13.

"I felt once we got the lead, they started to press a little in their shooting," White said. "Because of that we were able to pull out."

Mike Grimes and William Gamble added 16 to the South Haven total. Eric Pratt paced Comstock with 19.

South Haven hit on 30 of 74 from the floor for 40 per cent. Comstock cashed in on just 21 of 60 for 35 per cent.

The Rams posted a 39-25

LINKE REBOUND: Bob Linke of Bridgman (34) comes down with a rebound in action Friday night in the Bridgman-Watervliet game at the Bee gym. # Speedy Eau Claire Start Topples Shamrocks, 67-63

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Eau Claire used a speedy start on its way to a 67-63 victory over Al Berrien Springs here Friday night in a Red Arrow clash.

The Beavers only outscored Berrien in one of the four periods but the 21-12 margin in the opening stanza was enough to hold up for the vital Beaver win.

"They hit very well in the first quarter and got us off our stride just a little bit," noted Shamrock coach Connie Stover. "We weren't able to play as we would have liked. It wasn't the prettiest ball game in the world. The kids worked hard with a lot of hustle but there weren't all the results we would have liked to have seen."

The Beavers, who had lost two straight Red Arrow games, put four players in double figures with Terry Adams taking honors with 23 points. Al Flowers contributed 12, Jerry McAfee 11 and Randy Grandberry 10.

Berrien Springs' Terry Hosben came up with a game-high 25 points. Rick Thiele made 19 and Kirk Hansen 12.

Free throw shooting told the tale. Berrien could hit on seven of 19 shots to the Beavers' 13 of 27.

Berrien, which had onemore field goal, was 28 of 68 in the field for 41 per cent to the Beavers' 27 of 62 for 43 per cent. In the hot first period while Berrien was only six of 21.

The Shamrocks held a 47-36 board margin with Thiele taking 16 and Hosben 13 balls off the boards.

Berrien had 12 turnovers, Eau Claire 15.

Eau Claire is now 4-3 in league play. Berrien 4-2.

Lawrence Posts First Win

LAWRENCE — Lawrence finally came up with an offense to go with its tenacious defense here Friday night. And it paid off in the Tigers' first win of the season.

Hitting the 50-point mark for only the third time in eight games, Lawrence upended Gobles 50-46, snapping a seven-game Tiger losing streak. Lawrence is now 1-4 in SAC play. Gobles, which lost for the seventh straight time to Lawrence, fell to 1-4 and 3-7, respectively.

"We've been playing good defense all season except for the Marcellus game,"

Tech Wrestler Makes Olympics

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — Michigan has a wrestler who has made the Olympic team — but not for the United States.

Charles Calisto, a sophomore who wrestles for Michigan Tech, won the 163-pound title in Ecuador's national wrestling tournament over the holidays and earned a berth on that nation's Olympic team for the summer games at Montreal.

Calisto was born in New York but moved to Ecuador with his parents five years ago.

Lawrence coach Dave SMITH SAID. "But finally got more than one player playing a good ballgame."

Lawrence was sparked by the play of center Jim Mason, who pumped in 16 points and pulled down nine rebounds. Dennis Kidd added 14 points for Lawrence.

Bryan Clement scored 12 points to top Gobles. Randy Dylhoff added 11 and Jeff Price and Kendall Smith each had 10. Lawrence grabbed the lead from the outset of the game and only foul trouble kept the score close. The Tigers held leads of nine points in the second quarter and 10 in the third.

"It was a real good win," Smith said. "The kids were beginning to get the idea that they couldn't win."

Lawrence hit just 20 of 74 from the floor for a measly 27 per cent, but Gobles didn't do much better, meshing 19 of 68 for 28 per cent.

The Tigers held a 37-29

LAWTON — Lawton used some tight defense to check Michigan Lutheran and earn a 46-39 non-league victory here Friday night.

Dawson Rupp led all scorers with his 16 points for Lawton, now 3-5 overall.

John Brink put in 13 for Lutheran and Bob Guse 11.

Lawton hit 31 per cent afield on 14 of 45 shots while Lutheran was 33 per cent on 13 of 39. Lawton held a 42-39 rebound edge.

Tension Near Peak For Super Bowl Duel

MIAMI (AP) — The newcomers are uptight, the returning champions are ornery, the commissioner is overwhelmed by legal hassles, the streets are crisscrossed with revelers and sidewalk hostesses preying on them.

It's what you call a typical Super Bowl eve, something rivaling Times Square, a Las Vegas casino, a Fourth of July picnic and the sinking of the Titanic. It's carefully programmed chaos.

As today turns into tonight, the high-rollers are rolling into this alternately sun-splashed and rain-swept haven of single swimmers and senior citizens.

The restaurants, the night clubs, the bars, the tourist traps are doing a booming business—with prices booming, too.

At the training camps of the two protagonists in this multi-million dollar drama, the Dallas Cowboys and Pittsburgh Steelers, all is quiet—or should be. Eighty-six players and their coaches are going into the pregame ritual of psyching, that undefinable process that turns a mere mortal into either a superhuman perfectionist or a person with the precision, direction and strength of a bowl of oatmeal.

"The tension is beginning to build," Dallas Coach Tom Landry understated in Friday's news conference, his last public appearance before closing himself with his Cowboys to look once again for that chink in the armor that is Pittsburgh's Steel Curtain defense.

"I think all of us are beginning to feel a little of the pressure," Landry continued. "The rookies seem to be in another world. They don't know what to think about and what not to think about."

What the Cowboys are thinking about is what the Steelers are thinking about—how to fine-tune the mind to just that right fever pitch, that peak that comes just before deadly resolve turns into hysteria.

"They're starting to get ornery," Coach Chuck Noll said of his Steelers.

"They're a little edgy. You can be too happy and you can be too ornery. At game time, we like them very ornery. Then they're on their own."

What they're all thinking of, these Cowboys and Steelers, is the difference between winning and losing a National Football League championship game. It's not just the difference between $15,000 and $7,500, either. That's a lot of bread, even to men who have earned more than $35,000—and maybe a lot more—for their past season's work.

But there's that matter of pride. That's what it's all about. Being No. 2 out of 28 teams is pretty good—but it's nothing compared to No. 1. As Dallas linebacker Lee Roy Jordan, a veteran of three of these cauldronic clashes, said as he flashed the symbol of the Cowboys' Super Bowl VI title: "Sure, $7,500 buys a lot of rings but it can't buy this one."

A year ago, when the Steelers were winning one for themselves by smothering Minnesota 16-6, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle was grappling with the results of an opinion expressed by a judge in San Francisco, an opinion in the celebrated Joe Kapp case which brought into question the legality of the standard player contract, the very foundation of the sport.

Now Rozelle, one of the most powerful men in the world of professional athletics, is grappling with another opinion, this one by a judge in Minneapolis. That one stems from the John Mackey case, which asks whether a player should be allowed to offer his services to any team without hindrance or whether the team which signs him should have to give his former team something in return. That's called the option-compensation clause—alias The Rozelle Rule.

And Rozelle, the well-tanned, well-groomed, imperturbable emperor, sees his empire beginning to sag around the edges. What is now 26 teams is supposed to become 28 next season with the Seattle Seahawks and Tampa Bay Buccaneers beginning play.

But they may not. They've filed a suit of their own to try and stop the NFL Players Association in its tracks. The union is taking issue with the draft plan that will stock the two rosters with veterans from the established clubs. The suit has already forced postponement of that draft and the annual college draft.

"They have a contract with the other 26 clubs...for delivery to them of 39 veterans of clear quality," Rozelle said at Friday's news conference. "If it is blocked and there is no way we can sell the players, it is possible the expansion in 1976 could be clouded."

Of the Mackey Case and its threat to wipe out the Rozelle Rule, the commissioner said it would lead to players seeking to join teams in glamorous cities like New York and Los Angeles, to the detriment of many other franchisees.

Rozelle's Bash Really 'Super'

MIAMI (AP) — The 15-member band struck up the strains of "Tie A Yellow Ribbon Around the Old Oak Tree."

More than 300 youngsters — the girls in mini skirts and the boys in jeans — whirled through a lively song and dance routine on the patio, members of the "Up With People" troupes giving a lift to moral rearmament.

Art Rooney, the beloved old master of the champion Pittsburgh Steelers, showed up at the front gate with an unlighted cigar dangling from his mouth.

Friends flocked around him. "I won't pick the score — if we win by one point I will be happy," he said in reply to a question.

It was the big Super Bowl bash before the big championship game between the Steelers and the upstart Dallas Cowboys. That's Sunday in the Orange Bowl. This was Pete Rozelle's annual Friday night reception, and the place was a horse track — Hialeah Park, boarding house of Foolish Pleasure.

As usual, it was a gourmet's orgy. A thousand cars had been parked by 9 p.m. and they kept pouring in. The crowd was estimated at 3,000.

Picturesque Hialeah donned her fanciest garb for the out-of-town guests—newsmen, radio and TV personalities, sports celebrities and corporate tycoons, all with their ladies.

The fountain at the entrance to the spacious gardens threw up clouds of smoke, created by 200 pounds of dry ice. Towering spruce still wore lighted ornaments, holdovers from the Christmas holidays. Palm trees swayed in the breeze under a full moon.

It was quite a banquet. While the band played an assortment of tunes—ranging from rock and jazz to lilting ballad—guests wandered over the floral outdoor gardens, picking up cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at strategically placed tents.

"There goes Johnny Unitas," somebody said. "Did you see Joe Namath?"

"Where is Raquel Welch?"

Caterers brought in 2,000 pounds of stone crabs and 2,000 pounds of sliced tenderloin from New York for the sitdown dinner. There were 3,000 chairs and 300 tables covered with cloths bearing the rival teams' colors.

Wine glasses clinked. Booze poured from a bottomless trough. Everybody ate too much, drank too much but had a ball.

Then Rozelle "picked up the tab." About $75,000, he estimated. Some said he was just being gracious. It was more like $150,000.

Gopher Fights Ticket Rap

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Gopher basketball star Michael Thompson was to leave for St. Louis this morning to appeal a National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) decision that he is ineligible.

Thompson, a 6-foot-10 sophomore center who leads the Gophers in scoring and rebounding, was declared ineligible for an unspecified period for violating an NCAA rule against selling complimentary basketball tickets for more than their face value.

Thompson's appeal will be heard by the NCAA Sunday. He will not play today when the Gophers meet Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill.

Thompson, from Nassau, Bahamas, said Friday night he had made full restitution, in the form of a donation to the Williams Fund athletic scholarship program, for the tickets he sold last season.

"I don't remember who bought the tickets," Thompson said. "I said I wanted $180 for both tickets for the season and that's what he paid. I gave the money back before the (current) season began. When Coach (Jim) Dutcher told me last night (Thursday) that I was ineligible, I got the shock of my life."

A season ticket to last year's home basketball games at the university cost $39.

Selling tickets at more than face value is a violation of both Big Ten and NCAA rules.

A subcommittee of the faculty-student government's Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics announced the NCAA action Friday, but did not name the player.

Thompson has averaged 25 points and 11 rebounds per game this season in leading the Gophers to a 9-3 record to date.

Another Minnesota player, Dave Winney, sold complimentary tickets last year at face value last year. Winney also made full restitution and made the trip to Evanston Friday after Big Ten faculty representatives confirmed his eligibility.

Winney's action violated only Big Ten rules.

Minnesota, in its NCAA-ordered investigation of its basketball program, had announced earlier that two players had admitted selling complimentary tickets last season.

Horton Will Play Outfield

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said he has already told Willie Horton that he'll "play some in the outfield" this baseball season.

Horton, who had knee surgery in 1974, recuperated by spending the entire 1975 season as the Tigers' designated hitter. He wound up as the only American League player to play in all his team's games in 1975.

Friday night the 32-year-old slugger, a 13-year Tiger veteran, was honored as the "Tiger of the Year" by the Detroit chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Horton received a plaque at a dinner attended by the writers and Tiger front office personnel, including General Manager Jim Campbell and Houk.

"Last year I was still scared of his knee and that's why I didn't use him out there. He was about all we had," Houk said,

"At the end of last year he was running about as good as he ever has," Houk said, "but late in the season there was no need to use him in the field."

Detroit finished last in the American League East with a 57-102 record.

Horton led the team with a .275 batting average, 92 runs batted in and 25 homers.

"I really want to play in the outfield this year," Horton said.

Houk said that "It's no secret I lean towards carrying seven outfielders this year. We haven't had that kind of situation before."

Horton, Rusty Staub, Alex Johnson, Ron LeFlore, Mickey Stanley, Ben Oglivie are probably the first six. The extra outfielder will likely come from Art

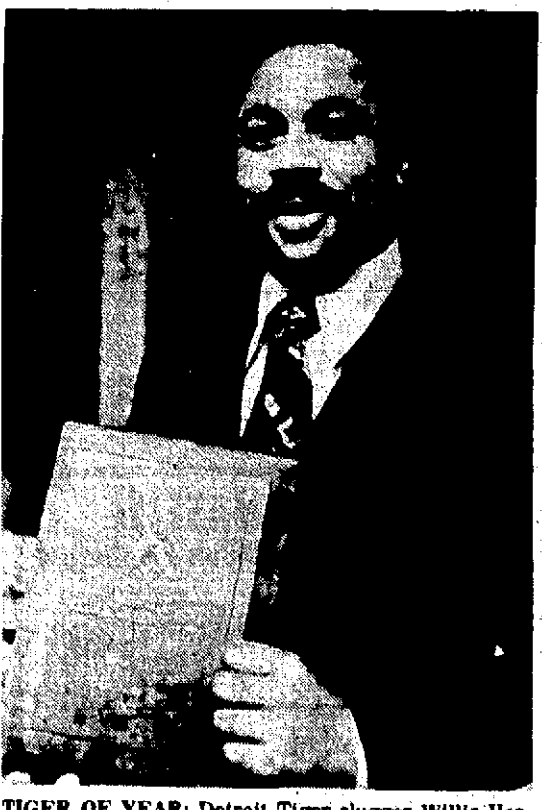

James, Bob Molinaro, John Valle or Dan Gonzales — all rookies on the winter roster.

Houk said Chuck Scrivener is a possibility as Detroit's utility infielder, a role held in recent years by Tony Taylor and Gene Michael.

There should be a battle for about four pitching spots. Houk expects to carry nine pitchers. Non-roster rookies Mark Fidrych and Mark MacCormack are expected to battle for possible starting berths. Four other non-rosters have been invited to spring training to join the 16 pitchers on the roster.

Houk said he'll look to newcomers Bill Laxton, Jim Crawford and Bruce Taylor as possible middle relievers. Vern Riffe, Joe Coleman, Ray Bare and Dave Roberts are the likely starters, and ace reliever John Miller is back.

Maltbie's Lead Is Like Dream

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — There's a certain dream-world quality to Roger Maltbie's three-stroke lead halfway through the $200,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

"When you're playing like this you almost get to the point where you're waiting for the bubble to burst," the 1975 Rookie of the Year said Friday after some brilliant iron play led to his second consecutive six-under-par 65.

His 130 total for two trips over the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course was a distant 12 under par, but the jaunty, chipper, 24-year-old figured he's going to have to continue near the same pace if he's to hold off such challengers as Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin and—of course—Johnny Miller.

"As long as I keep on striking the ball like this, I should continue to shoot low rounds," said Maltbie, winner of two titles and more than $80,000 last season as a first-year man.

Jim Colbert, with a second-round 65 and a 133 total, was the closest to Maltbie's lead.

Trevino and Irwin were tied for third at 134. Trevino shot a 68 that did not include a birdie on a par-five hole, and Irwin had a 68.

Bob Gilder, a rookie from nearby Arizona State, and Lee Elder were at 135.

Houk said Chuck Scrivener is a possibility as Detroit's utility infielder, a role held in recent years by Tony Taylor and Gene Michael.

There should be a battle for about four pitching spots, Houk expects to carry nine pitchers. Non-roster rookies Mark Fidrych and Mark MacCormack are expected to battle for possible starting berths. Four other non-rosters have been invited to spring training to join the 16 pitchers on the roster.

Houk said he'll look to newcomers Bill Laxton, Jim Crawford and Bruce Taylor as possible middle relievers. Vern Ruhle, Joe Coleman, Ray Bare and Dave Roberts are the likely starters, and ace reliever John Hiller is back.

Maltbie's Lead Is Like Dream

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — There's a certain dream-world quality to Roger Maltbie's three-stroke lead halfway through the $200,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

"When you're playing like this you almost get to the point where you're waiting for the bubble to burst," the 1975 Rookie of the Year said Friday after some brilliant iron play led to his second consecutive six-under-par 65.

His 130 total for two trips over the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course was a distant 12 under par, but the jaunty, chipper, 24-year-old figured he's going to have to continue near the same pace if he's to hold off such challengers as Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin and—of course—Johnny Miller.

"As long as I keep on striking the ball like this, I should continue to shoot low rounds," said Maltbie, winner of two titles and more than $80,000 last season as a first-year man.

Jim Colbert, with a second-round 65 and a 133 total, was the closest to Maltbie's lead.

Trevino and Irwin were tied for third at 134. Trevino shot a 68 that did not include a birdie on a par-five hole, and Irwin had a 65.

MSU Making Final Appeal Before NCAA Axe Falls

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University officials make their final pitch before the NCAA Sunday in an attempt to avert being penalized for alleged football recruiting violations.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has issued its decision and proposed penalties for MSU, although the months-long lid of secrecy surrounding the investigation has been kept on. But Spartan officials have one last appeal before the axe falls.

The appeal will be heard in St. Louis by the NCAA council at 9:30 a.m., an MSU spokesman said. He said no plans have yet been made on how or when the outcome would be announced.

Traveling to St. Louis are MSU President Clifton Wharton, Vice President for Legal Affairs Leland Carr, and a four-member investigating committee appointed earlier by Wharton to prepare the school's response to the NCAA charges.

Although neither the NCAA nor the university would confirm it, the Detroit News reported earlier this week in a copyrighted article that the NCAA wants to put MSU on probation for three years — thus losing TV and bowl-game appearances. The News also said the NCAA wants assistant football coaches Howard Weyers and Charles Butler dismissed.

The lengthy procedure began last summer with a complaint filed against MSU by a still unidentified school. But observers feel the probe centers around Michigan State's efforts to recruit high school players in the Midwest, especially Ohio.

After an initial investigation, the school was informed of the charges against it and MSU officials appeared before the NCAA infractions committee in Denver last October to defend the football program. Apparently, they were unsuccessful.

News leaks and reports have said the NCAA was looking into about 70 charges of violations, many of which were identified as focused on Weyers.

Other reports said Michigan State will be placed on probation, which would entail no post-season bowl games and no television appearances.

Such a fate would have an inevitable adverse impact on the Spartans' recruiting drives, although the controversy has already damaged the school's image.

Other rumors included reports the entire football coaching staff would be forced to resign. Another forecast the school taking the NCAA to court over the final decision if MSU was not cleared.

During the investigation, reporters unearthed details of how one football player used a credit card belonging to an MSU booster to buy clothes. Spartan quarterback Charlie Baggett had to return a new Buick he bought in a special payment deal. Clouded by the investigation, the promising football team stumbled to a 7-4 record, 4-4 in the Big Ten. Both players and coaches refused to talk about the probe all season.

Complicating the affair was the ouster of Athletic Director Burt Smith in what MSU officials claimed was an unrelated move to shore up administration of the football program.

Major Grid Teams Escape Aid 'Noose'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Big-time college football again has slipped the noose of tighter financial aid to athletes, but for how long?

"When they waved the paddles to vote, I thought we'd lost," one of the game's premier coaches, Arkansas' Frank Broyles, said following the latest escape Friday.

"It's evident from what happened that they're whittling away," Broyles said of elements among National Collegiate Athletic Association convention delegates intent on tying financial aid to the need for it by a student.

"If recession continues and inflation keeps up, then it will be even harder to carry our case next year," Broyles predicted. "They just keep at it and pretty soon your resistance breaks down."

Broyles' remarks, reflecting the concern of major college coaches, followed a 120-112 roll call vote among NCAA Division I members to turn back establishment of the need factor, with five members abstaining.

Although football powers in the division defeated the bid by a 74-54 vote, he noted, schools which are Division I in basketball alone lent it 58-46 support.

An economy-minded Long Beach State President Stephen

A. Horn and the chancellor of UCLA, Charley E. Young, were among those who presented arguments supporting the proposed legislation.

Pacific Conference members reflected Young's by voting 6-2 in favor, but the program as it now exists survived via solid support from Big Eight, Western Athletic and Southeastern conferences.

"I thought they might be split even more than that," Big Eight Commissioner Charles M.

Neinas said of a 7-2 vote against the proposal by Southwest Conference schools.

"Something to be remembered," Neinas noted, "is the reclassification of Division I schools as proposed."

"As reclassified, 21 schools which would have been in Division I voted for need, 64 against it and five abstained," Neinas pointed out. "As far as we're concerned, that's a point in favor of reorganization."

Reorganization, detailed only this week in circulars distributed tardily to delegates, apparently was dealt a death blow for the current convention.

As to be presented on the floor, a resolution by the influential NCAA Council calls for placing a proposed 81-school football "super division" in abeyance and reclassifying in time for next year.

On that basis, the resolution notes, appeals could be heard and members would vote on the new divisions either in their current alignment or in their new classifications next January.

Legislation passed by delegates on Friday included a bylaw amendment which rescinds coaching limitations in football and basketball for members of Division II.

The same amendment, however, failed in Division I. Rejected also by delegates were a University of South Carolina proposal to boost the total number of football scholarships permitted in a school's program from 95 to 120 and a University of Nebraska proposal to defer compliance with the lesser number until 1978.

Prep Cage Tidbits

There were nearly twice as many spectators at the Lansing Everett-Lansing Eastern high school basketball game Friday night as were on hand at Cobo Arena in Detroit to watch the pro Pistons lose to Portland.

More than 9,000 spectators showed up at Jensen Field House to see Everett swamp Eastern 84-55. There were 4,855 at the Pistons' 111-104 loss to the Trailblazers. Many fans at Jensen had to stand because a section of bleachers at an end of the court were not set up.

Clinton's got plenty to cheer about today. It's high school basketball team beat Manchester 64-63 — Clinton's first victory in two years.

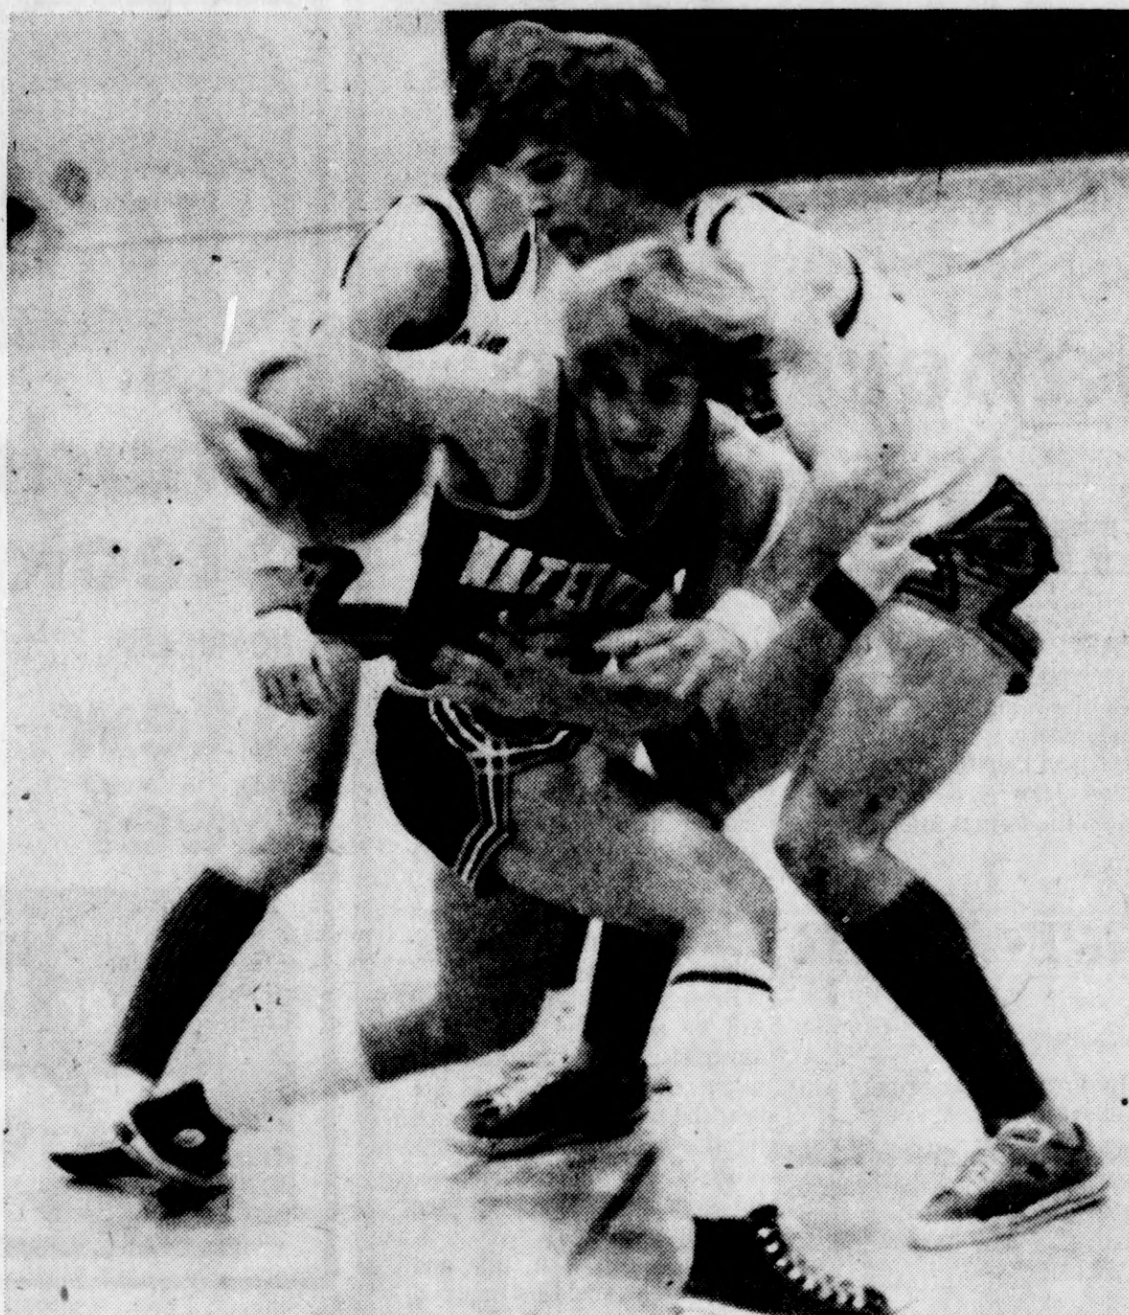

Harrison's 73-61 victory over Evart provided Dick Johnson with his 200th prep coaching triumph. Meanwhile, Jerry Barr picked up his 100th coaching victory when his Romeo team beat Troy Athens 58-56 in triple overtime. It was Romeo's first triumph this season in eight games.

Harbor Springs beat Gaylord St. Mary 108-78. It was the sixth time in eight games it has scored more than 100 points this season.

Steve Deller of Trenton scored 16 points to lead his team to a 66-35 victory over Livonia Bentley. His last bucket gave him 1,001 points for his four-year varsity career.

At Custer, Bob Capsi of Mason County Eastern poured in 54 points — a school record — in an 80-69 triumph over Baldwin. He was 14-for-14 from the free throw line.

Detroit Denby led only 34-30 at halftime over Detroit Osborn, but wound up with an impressive 77-51 triumph. Stuart House scored 27 points for Denby, grabbed 18 rebounds and blocked six shots. Teammate James Newman scored 21 points and had 11 assists.

ONE-HANDED ACT: Watervliet's Rick Sabadin holds the basketball in one hand in an attempt to keep the ball away from Bridgman's Howard Mutz. The Bees beat the Panthers 58-54 Friday night at the Bridgman gym for their third straight victory. (Carl Hartman photo)

Overley Powers Decatur To Win

DECATUR — Jim Overley got Decatur rolling here Friday night and the Raiders never quit, ripping Bloomingdale 83-60.

Overley hit six of six from the floor early in the first quarter to help Decatur race out to a 14-4 lead and they were really never headed.

The 5-11 senior finished with 19 points to lead all scorers and help Decatur to its fourth league win in five games. The Raiders are 7-2 overall. Bloomingdale fell for the first time after four SAC wins.

"Overley broke their backs with his outside jump shots," Decatur coach Tom Gibson said. "We played good ball, though. Our half court press seemed to keep them upset so they couldn't run their offense."

Guard Kurt Wiese, who entered the game as the area's third leading scorer with a 21.6 average, was bothered by foul trouble and scored just eight points.

"Kurt played a good floor game while he was in there, though," Gibson added.

Decatur blistered the nets on 33 of 63 from the floor for 52 per cent, while Bloomingdale could muster just 24 of 64 for 38 per cent.

Decatur held a 36-29 rebounding edge with Steve Groendyk pulling down 11. Bloomingdale center Tim Miller, who led the Cardinals with 17 points, also came away with nine rebounds.

The Raiders committed 23 turnovers but made up for it with 20 steals.

Accused Kidnapers Due For Novel 2-In-1 Trial

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Trials for two men accused of kidnaping the son of a General Motors executive will be held simultaneously before one judge and two juries next month.

The separate trials, to be held in the northern Michigan community of Leland beginning Feb. 9, grew out of the Nov. 10 abduction of 13-year-old Timothy Stempel.

Two defense attorneys and Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson agreed on the novel trial format Thursday. All said the approach will make legal history.

Oakland County Circuit Court Judge John N. O'Brien suggested the format after Patterson announced he intends to use confessions allegedly made by the two defendants. Under a U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the confession of one man may not be used as evidence against another man, a situation that usually has resulted in separate trials.

Dowagiac Gets Another Loan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An additional $66,000, low-interest loan for Dowagiac has been approved by the Federal Farmer's Home Administration, U.S. Fourth District Congressman Edward Hutchinson (R-St. Joseph) announced yesterday.

The latest approval brings to $300,000 the total amount of low-interest loans the city has received to build an addition to its present sewer treatment facilities.

Dowagiac has also been approved for outright grants totaling $2,963,625 from the federal Environmental Protection agency.

Total cost of the project will be about $3,977,100. Solitt Construction of South Bend was awarded the general construction contract in November with its low bid of $3,599,000.

Accused Kidnapers Due For Novel 2-In-1 Trial

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Trials for two men accused of kidnaping the son of a General Motors executive will be held simultaneously before one judge and two juries next month. The separate trials, to be held in the northern Michigan community of Leland beginning Feb. 9, grew out of the Nov. 10 abduction of 13-year-old Timothy Stempel. Two defense attorneys and Oakland County Prosecutor L.

Brooks Patterson agreed on the novel trial format Thursday. All said the approach will make legal history. Oakland County Circuit Court Judge John N. O'Brien suggested the format after Patterson announced he intends to use confessions allegedly made by the two defendants. Under a U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the confession of one man may not be used as evidence against another man, a situation that usually has resulted in separate trials.

"I suggested we select two juries at one time in our single sojourn to the north country," O'Brien said. "The two juries will be separated but simultaneously present in the courtroom except they would not hear the testimony about which the Burton rule applies." The precedent he cited, Burton vs. U.S., was a 1963 case before the U.S. Supreme Court.

O'Brien cited the time and expense that would be required to hold two separate trials more than 200 miles from Oakland County and then suggested the trials be held simultaneously except for reading the alleged confessions. The juries are to be alternately excused from the courtroom.

"I have never heard of such a thing," said Donald Brown, defense attorney for Clinton Williams, 19. He called the development an "extremely innovative approach."

Curtis Lindell, attorney for Darryl Wilson, 22, had the same reaction. The two defendants were arrested only a few days after the Stempel boy was abducted from his fashionable Bloomfield Township neighborhood.

The youth's father, Robert C. Stempel, chief engineer for Chevrolet division of General Motors, testified at a pretrial examination that he paid a $150,000 ransom for his son's release, although most of the money was recovered.

The boy was released unharmed on Nov. 13.

The trial was ordered moved to Leland when the defense contended there had been excessive pretrial publicity in Oakland County.

Dowagiac Gets Another Loan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An additional $66,000, low-interest loan for Dowagiac has been approved by the federal Farmer's Home administration, U.S. Fourth District Congressman Edward Hutchinson (R-St. Joseph) announced yesterday. The latest approval brings to $800,000 the total amount of low-interest loans the city has received to build an addition to its present sewer treatment facilities.

Dowagiac has also been approved for outright grants totaling $2,963,625 from the federal Environmental Protection agency.

Total cost of the project will be about $3,977,160.

Sollitt Construction of South Bend was awarded the general construction contract in November with its low bid of $3,599,000.

Now See Here! BY BERT BACHARACH

CAPRICORNIANS (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) have many, many virtues but some faults as well — they're likely to be discontented, gloomy, "bossy" and conceited. Experts say parents with superior intelligence are most likely to produce a genius, but geniuses rarely have geniuses. Item for a Lull-in-Conversation: Statistics show that approximately one-third of Americans over 30 are 10 percent or more overweight. Dream Stuff: If you dream of pocket watches, you can look forward to getting a promotion. Celebri-Tip from Janet Leigh: "An excellent and simple exercise — holding hands at shoulder level at sides and shaking them vigorously will aid your circulation." Graphologists say that rounded strokes in handwriting reflect a kind, warm personality. Did you know that in Ethiopia, Christmas is celebrated 13 times a year, once each month and twice in April?

BAR-SNOOPING: Word from London is that the Britons mix their Tom Collins with a single drop of honey, and it improves the taste. You're an oldtimer if you remember when everybody had a cold and nobody had a virus! Beauty Hint: Soaking mascara and lipstick brushes for a few minutes in a small amount of baby oil will remove stubborn residue when rinsed out with water. You are more likely to get a headache when you're resting than when you're working, according to a medical specialist.

Overworked Expression: "You've made my day!" Bar-Snooping (one more time): If you're one of those who like rye and ginger ale, you'll probably like it a lot more if you add a slice of pineapple. Marriage-Saver Tip: If a husband's snoring keeps a wife from sleeping, it is said that a gentle whistle from her will make him stop. Famous Last Words: "I never use an accountant on my tax returns. I just use my own judgment on all that small type stuff."

KITCHEN-SNOOPING: To make your Roquefort dressing extra tasty, just add a little sour cream (Gaslight clubs). For salads or canapés you can achieve a unique taste if you use mayonnaise flavored with curry (Pen & Pencil, NYC). Serve your tomatoes sliced, topped with a drop of olive oil, then salt — and sprinkle the slices generously with fresh chopped sage (Barbetta, NYC).

FADED PHRASES: "I'd like you to meet my intended." "He has a heart of stone" and "He's courtin' trouble." Roy Scheider will next star in "The Sorcerer," remake of "The Wages of Fear." After that shark in "Jaws," Roy has no fear. Elliott Gould's next release is Brut's "Whiffs." (That makes scents!) Comedian Ronnie Barker plays Friar Tuck in the "Robin & Marian" film. (No doubt he does a lot of monk-ey business!) Longtime maitre d' Rene Piana at Rothmann's Inn, East Norwich, L.I., was once chief steward for the Ringling Brothers Circus. Told us that the ones with the biggest appetites! Sandwich Favorite of Anthony Newley: Sliced liverwurst, sweet relish and a slice of ham on toasted rye. Men blush more easily than women, according to Cambridge university research. The bar scene for the Pace Productions' documentary "America" was filmed at the Gaslight club, NYC. (The Pace on the barroom floor?) Smattering of Signs: The Cancer person is the most domestic of all signs — is home-loving, likes good food, enjoys cooking and loves the security of the home. Where's

Money Coming From?

NEW YORK (AP) — Record trading volume and a continuing rally brought a lot of attention to the stock market this past week, but where the money was coming from remained unclear.

"The market's turbulent activity set those who analyze it to debating who was doing all the buying and selling, and why. 'I don't think the public is participating in the market as heavily as the volume would indicate. But they're back in, asking questions,' said Henry Perrine, manager of an E.F. Hutton office here.

Whether they were buying stock or not, the public was still interested enough to crowd into brokerage houses to watch electronic tickers record each stock transaction.

Perrine said the number of visitors to his office swelled as the market's pace picked up steam during the week.

There were nearly as many opinions on who was causing the activity as there are security analysts, but the number of trades in blocks of thousands of shares of a particular stock showed that large institutions, such as life insurance companies and banks, were actively in the market.

The New York Stock Exchange set a daily volume record Thursday, when 38.45 million shares were traded. The weekly volume record of 145.68 million shares set in the last week of January last year was also eclipsed by the week's 139.00 million shares traded.

During the week the closely watched Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks added 18.50 points to close at 829.63.

In large part, the week's rally fed on itself as excitement grew about the market's large advance of the new year and the heavy volume that accompanied it.

Also, there appeared to have been a lot of cash that was on the sidelines as the investment community waited to see what the market was going to do. When the rally began and investor confidence grew with it, this money came into the market.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 2.05 over the week to 97 even. The NYSE's composite index was up 1.12 at 51.41.

Middle South Utilities was the Big Board volume leader, thanks largely to a huge 2.1 million-share block trade on Thursday. The stock rose 1/4 to 15 1/2.

Favorable fourth-quarter earnings reports gave a lift to such glamor issues as IBM, up 10 1/2 at 242; Burroughs, ahead 9 1/2 at 97; and Walt Disney Productions, up 2 at 84 1/2.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 5.0 to 292.7.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Where's Money Coming From?

NEW YORK (AP) — Record trading volume and a continuing rally brought a lot of attention to the stock market this past week, but where the money was coming from remained unclear.

The market's turbulent activity set those who analyze it to debating who was doing all the buying and selling, and why.

"I don't think the public is participating in the market as heavily as the volume would indicate. But they're back in, asking questions," said Henry Perrine, manager of an E.F. Hutton office here.

Whether they were buying stock or not, the public was still interested enough to crowd into brokerage houses to watch electronic tickers record each stock transaction.

Perrine said the number of visitors to his office swelled as the market's pace picked up steam during the week.

There were nearly as many opinions on who was causing the busiest week in its history Friday with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closing at 929.63 up 18.58 points from last week's close of 911.05. (AP Wirephoto)

The New York Stock Exchange set a daily volume record Thursday, when 38.45 million shares were traded. The weekly volume record of 145.88 million shares set in the last week of January last year was also eclipsed by the week's 159.69 million shares traded. During the week the closely watched Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks added 18.50 points to close at 929.63.

Commissioner Selent, seconded by Commissioner Gillespie moved approval of the foregoing report and that the Director of Finance be authorized and issue vouchers for payment of the several amounts. Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

The City Manager presented a draft of an agreement creating a board of Harbor Commissioners consisting of equal representation from the City of St. Joseph and the County of Berrien for the consideration of the City Commission. He pointed out that the City of Benton Harbor had taken no further action on this matter and that it was originally presented as a condition to be made before a disposal site for river dredging would be approved. The City Manager pointed out that the agreement seemed to give broad powers to the proposed board of Harbor Commissioners preempting the planning powers agreed upon at previous meetings. After discussion Commissioner Gillespie, seconded by Commissioner Selent moved that the matter be laid on the table.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

The City Manager presented a letter to the City Commission from DICK KIESEL, COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT COORDINATOR, dated January 2, 1976, requesting approval of a One Thousand Nine Hundred Dollar ($1,900.00) Direct Grant for ROBERT ZUHL, who lives at 923 Lewis Avenue, St. Joseph, Michigan. The Grant would be for installation of aluminum siding on Mr. Zuhl's home. Two bids have been received. After discussion Commissioner Selent, seconded by Commissioner Gast moved that the City Commission approve the application of Robert Zuhl for a Direct Grant of One Thousand Nine Hundred Dollars ($1,900.00) for the improvement and repair of his home at 923 Lewis Avenue, St. Joseph, Michigan.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

Mayor Pro-Tem Hanley presiding in the absence of Mayor Smith presented a report of the special Financial Study Committee. The committee had been appointed by Mayor Smith, November 3, 1975 to make recommendations which would alleviate the current financial uncertainty. The following are recommendations suggested by this committee listed by priority:

1. The committee proposes that the process be established to increase the property tax limitation to the twenty mills permitted by the State of Michigan.

2. Urge the establishment of a county-wide property reappraisal program to provide equitable property tax assessments for all.

3. The City should seek ways to continue the practice of financial restraint in city operations.

4. No services should be reduced at present since action might render deteriorating conditions throughout the City.

5. Explore the feasibility of a public safety department with trained public safety officers, supplying the services currently being delivered by police and fire personnel.

After discussion Commissioner Gast, seconded by Commissioner Selent, moved that the report of the Special Financial Study Committee be accepted and approved and the City Attorney be directed to implement the necessary charter changes as soon as possible.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

Commission for its accomplishments during the year, 1975. EDWARD MOSMANN stated that he would be opposed to any increase in taxes that were not absolutely necessary.

There being no further business to come before this commission, Commissioner Selent moved to adjourn until Monday, January 12, 1976 at 7:30 P.M.

Commissioner Selent, seconded by Commissioner Gillespie moved approval of the foregoing report and that the Director of Finance be authorized and issue vouchers in payment of the several amounts. Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

The City Manager presented a draft of an agreement creating a board of Harbor Commissioners consisting of equal representation from the City of St. Joseph and the City of Benton Harbor and the County of Berrien for the consideration of the City Commission. He pointed out that the City of Benton Harbor had taken no further action on this matter and that it was originally presented as a condition to be made before a disposal site for river dredging would be approved. The City Manager pointed out that the agreement seemed to give broad powers to the proposed board of Harbor Commissioners preempting the planning powers agreed upon at previous meetings. After discussion Commissioner Gillespie, seconded by Commissioner Selent moved that the matter be laid on the table.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

The City Manager presented a letter to the City Commission from DICK KIESEL, COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT COORDINATOR, dated January 2, 1976, requesting approval of a One Thousand Nine Hundred Dollar ($1,900.00) Direct Grant for ROBERT ZUHL, who lives at 923 Lewis Avenue, St. Joseph, Michigan. The Grant would be for installation of aluminum siding on Mr. Zuhl's home. Two bids have been received. After discussion Commissioner Selent, seconded by Commissioner Gast moved that the City Commission approve the application of Robert Zuhl for a Direct Grant of One Thousand Nine Hundred Dollars ($1,900.00) for the improvement and repair of his home at 923 Lewis Avenue, St. Joseph, Michigan.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

Mayor Pro-Tem Hanley presiding in the absence of Mayor Smith presented a report of the special Financial Study Committee. The committee had been appointed by Mayor Smith, November 3, 1975 to make recommendations which would alleviate the current financial uncertainty. The following are recommendations suggested by this committee listed by priority:

1. The committee proposes that the process be established to increase the property tax limitation to the twenty mills permitted by the State of Michigan.

2. Urge the establishment of a county-wide property reappraisal program to provide equitable property tax assessments for all.

3. The City should seek ways to continue the practice of financial restraint in city operations.

4. No services should be reduced at present since action might render deteriorating conditions throughout the City.

5. Explore the feasibility of a public safety department with trained public safety officers supplying the services currently being delivered by police and fire personnel.

After discussion Commissioner Gast, seconded by Commissioner Selent, moved that the report of the Special Financial Study Committee be accepted and approved and the City Attorney be directed to implement the necessary charter changes as soon as possible.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley and Selent. Nays: None. Absent: Commissioner Smith. Motion declared carried.

TOM SPARKS praised the Commission for its accomplishments during the year, 1975.

EDWARD MOSIMANN stated that he would be opposed to any increase in taxes that were not absolutely necessary.

There being no further business to come before this commission, Commissioner Selent moved to adjourn until Monday, January 12, 1976 at 7:30 P.M.

FOR HARRY CHAPIN, composer-singer

How do you feel about musicians taking drugs?—P.M., Grand Forks, N.D.

● I think that, besides being very stupid, they're also terribly selfish. Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin could have given the public years and years of their talent had they not been addicts. My father, a jazz drummer, was a great admirer of Charlie Parker, the jazz saxophonist who also ended his life prematurely—through heroin. I was seven at the time. I remember Dad saying, "If you're really interested in music, don't put a filter between yourself and your senses." I never forgot those words. Musicians who are on dope don't take their work seriously. Geniuses who self-destruct are criminals. It's a crime to deprive the world of their art.

FOR HENRY KISSINGER

Why do you advocate that the U.S. give up control of the Panama Canal Zone?—Mildred Stork, Canton, Ohio

● The U.S. is seeking to establish a new and mutually acceptable relationship between our two countries whereby the U.S. can continue operating and defending the canal for a reasonably extended period of time. A new treaty would enable the U.S. to devote its energies to the efficient operation and control of the waterway and would leave other matters to the Panamanians. Moreover, it would hopefully provide a friendlier environment in Panama.

FOR VIKKI CARR

Do you think it's wrong for a woman to ask a man out?—B. B., Kenosha, Wis.

● No. A few years ago I realized a woman didn't lose her femininity if she invited a man to have a cup of coffee with her (and life has been much more pleasant as a result!). I think most men enjoy being asked for a date, rather than always having to be the ones who ask.

FOR MUHAMMAD ALI

Do you ever think of retiring?—J. B., Boise, Idaho

● I think about it only because I'll have to—in two years. That's after I've taken on Frazier, Foreman and Norton. When I give up the ring, I'll go into the ministry.

FOR PRINCESS MARGARET

You've been here so many times. What impresses you most about the U.S.?—A. S., New York, N.Y.

● Its vastness. It's like 50 separate countries, all joined together. And when I realize that Britain can fit into either Oregon or Wyoming with room to spare, it makes America seem even bigger.

FOR ARLENE FRANCIS

Are you forgetful?—Bob Smith, Stockton, Calif.

● Only about glasses. I find them in the oddest places—like the freezer. And I belong to the brigade of those who push their specs up on their hairline, then spend the next two hours looking for them. In fact, I'm so remiss that, as a precaution, I keep spares all over—at the office, even at friends' homes—so that I'll never be caught without them.

FOR F.O. J. SIMPSON

I understand you might retire from football at the end of this season. Any special reason?—Jenny Baker, Mano, Ohio

● My plans are not yet finalized, but if I retire from football now, it will be because of my acting career. In 1975 I was offered a couple of real juicy parts, but I couldn't accept them because of football. I enjoy acting—it's stimulating and it's something I can do for the rest of my life.

FOR BILLY DEE WILLIAMS, star of "Mahogany"

How do you feel about films that have racial overtones?—Kenneth Myers, Savannah, Ga.

● I don't like them, and I wouldn't be in one if I could help it or unless it was absolutely necessary. Movies in which whites and blacks are against each other are not for me. I did it once, in "Final Comedown," and that was enough. The way to smooth out differences is by playing to people's intelligence, not their ignorance.

FOR SALLY QUINN, newswoman

You always seem to be in controversial situations. Tell me about your first one.—S. Reed, Washington, D.C.

● At 15, I had a date with this terrific hockey captain. It was snowing when he picked me up. He sped off and I asked him to slow down, but he called me chicken and went even faster. The car skidded and I said, "Either you slow down or I'll get out." He stopped the car, so I got out and walked home. I had a better chance half-frozen than completely dead. He never dated me again. I didn't care—consideration is more important than looks.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Reading about Janet Lennon in FAMILY WEEKLY recently reminded me that the Lennon Sisters haven't been on the Lawrence Welk show for ages. What happened?—R. G., Gary, Ind.

● According to Peggy Lennon, eight years ago, when the girls started marrying and raising families, they needed more money. They asked for a raise, but Lawrence Welk's policy is not to exceed union scale (then $210 a week). So they left. Welk discovered the girls, and Peggy stresses there were no bad feelings when they walked out. They haven't been in touch since the breakup, but they feel grateful to the bandleader for putting them "on the map," and are still extremely close to Welk's son, Larry. Peggy, Kathy, Janet and Dianne believe leaving the Welk show was a wise decision. They felt stifled singing the same kind of song week after week. "On the show we were children," said Kathy. "When we left, we became adults."

Through Halls of Love and Power, A Search for the Real Onassis

By Nicholas Gage
Author of "The Bourlotos Fortune"
(Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $8.95)

"He would come home and the moment he came in the door he would begin to tear off his clothes and throw them on the floor. Sometimes he would even throw himself on the floor and go to sleep right there on the carpet. An hour later he would be completely refreshed."

I first met Aristotle Onassis in 1969 when he was trying to negotiate a contract to build a $7 million refinery and industrial complex in Greece. I was then working for The Wall Street Journal and Onassis agreed to grant me an interview in Athens. To me, as a fellow Greek, Onassis had always been a puzzle. I had been proud of his success but disappointed by his apparent selfishness. With all his millions he had never donated a single school, hospital or library to Greece.

As the interview progressed, my suspicions began to be reinforced. "I'm a businessman," he told me at one point. "I'm out to make every million I can." I left the interview convinced that what made Onassis tick was simply lust for money.

But I later learned that there were many more sides to the man than I first suspected. For one thing, although he never openly gave to charity in his lifetime, he secretly did hundreds of charitable acts. As I learned more about him,

I began to be fascinated by the contradictions. He was short and physically unappealing, but he mesmerized some of the world's most sought-after women. He was considered ruthless in business, but other shipowners told me he never could fire anyone who worked for him. He was envied by all the world, but his life was in the end a bitter disappointment to him.

My fascination with the mystery of Onassis finally led me to write a novel about Greek shipowners. My research took me through England, France, Greece and the Greek islands, talking to many Greek shipowners and their wives, children and mistresses. The result was a book called "The Bourlotos Fortune," which focuses on the competition between the old established Greek shipowners and an ambitious young upstart, like Onassis, who challenged their power and revolutionized the shipping business.

I talked with people who had known Onassis as an employer, a schoolmate, a business rival and a friend. Each disclosed a piece of the puzzle and slowly a picture began to form. I learned, for example, that Onassis' chief motivation was not greed but a sense of loss. He had spent his youth as the son of a well-to-do merchant in Smyrna in Asia Minor, and when the Turks attacked the city in 1922, massacring Greeks and Armenians by the thousands, his uncle and beloved grandmother perished and Onassis and the rest of his family were forced to flee.

Aristotle Onassis: He knew instantly what women wanted him to be and to say.

"Onassis came from a family that was very well off, and suddenly he found himself poor—a refugee," Constantine Gratsos, Onassis' closest friend for almost 50 years, told me. "He wanted to recapture what he had lost, and he did it beyond his wildest dreams."

I also caught glimpses of Onassis' superhuman energy, his genius for business and his tremendous persuasive powers. "His energy was amazing," one of his chief aides in Greece told me. "He could go for two or three days without sleep and show no signs of fatigue at all." In Paris, Ingeborg Dedichen, who lived with Onassis from 1934 to 1946, told me what he was like after coping with a grueling business crisis. "He would come home and the moment he came in the door he would begin to tear off his clothes and throw them on the floor. Sometimes he would even throw himself on the floor and go to sleep right there on the carpet. An hour later he would be completely refreshed."

Doris Lilly Remembers: Ari Was Selfish, Childish and (Doggone It!) Attractive

By Doris Lilly

TV Reporter and Author of — "How to Marry a Millionaire"

Aristotle Onassis was the kind of man who could sign a contract with disappearing ink, never marry the women who really loved him and eat raw onions for lunch. He was also one of the stingiest men in the world. But, doggone it, he was attractive.

One night Ari and I were having dinner at El Morocco and a Greek friend of his gave me some worry beads. I liked them. Not gawdy, but sweet. Later, Ari, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. and I drove over to P. J. Clarke's—a gregarious New York saloon that caters to alcoholic lovers, insomniacs, or both. A pair of seedy-looking hippies stopped by our table to gape, and Ari instructed me to give them my worry beads. I hesitated. "Don't worry," he crowed, "I'll send you some really good ones tomorrow." Sadly, for me, tomorrow never came. And when I reminded him of his oversight some weeks later, he shrugged and looked away.

Ari always looked away when he didn't like the question. That other billionaire, Onassis and Miss Lilly at El Morocco, the New York night club, in the 1960's.

Howard Hughes, would pretend he was deaf when he didn't want to answer you. In actual fact, Howard's hearing is sharper than that of a cocker spaniel's. That man can hear a Kleenex drop.

Like so many successful men of my acquaintance, Ari needed little sleep. I asked him about this and he told me, "All I need is about three hours a night. I can stay up with no sleep at all for two days. Then I go to bed and sleep for 24 hours straight and wake up refreshed." He didn't know it then, of course, but this is a symptom of myasthenia gravis, the paralyzing nerve disease that took his life. But even if he had known, it wouldn't have made any difference. Ari lived life to the hilt. He never missed a beat.

Aboard the lavish Christina, Ari appeared more impressive than on land. Taller even—more handsome. He was secure in his winged, sea-girl citadel. The crew danced around him like a pack of ring-tailed monkeys. He wallowed in the spectacle. During lunch, which was generally doused in spiced lukewarm oil, Ari came into his own. (Later, Jackie brought fruit aboard—no doubt to allay an epidemic of scurvy.) Ari banged on the table and told ribald jokes. He reveled in the boat's appointments. "Look," he said, fingering the arm of my chair, "see, see, there's a hook there to hang your handbag." Marvelous. "Look at those cigarettes," he hollered, "see, see, they're named Old Sailor." Big laugh from all sides. The staterooms were named after Greek islands. The room the ladies used to "freshen up" was called "Lassbos." Funny! In spite of all this ribaldry, ladies were instructed to wear dresses at lunch. Ari despised trousers on women. (Apparently he changed later, because that's all Jackie ever wore.)

But there was such honesty about this man, such naivete, that you couldn't help marveling at his ability to amass that fortune, to achieve his celebrity. But again—he was attractive, in spite of it.

Those great, round olive eyes were blotted out by his sunglasses—black shades that he wore at breakfast, lunch and dinner. Did he wear them in the bathtub? I know of someone who can answer that—Ingeborg Dedichen. When Ari met Ingeborg he was a struggling young beginner. Her father, a powerful Norwegian fleet owner, helped give him his start.

Says Ingeborg: "Ari was fearless, cool and level-headed. He demanded military obedience and was insanely jealous." To punish her for going out with an Italian, Ari forced her to eat spaghetti at every meal for two weeks. They stayed together for 12 years. But, although Ingeborg loved him, eventually he married Athina Livanos, the daughter of the fantastically rich Greek shipowner—Stavros Livanos.

Maria Callas loved him, too. When he left her to marry Jack Kennedy's widow, Maria said, "First I lost my weight, then I lost my voice and now I've lost Onassis."

But, damn it, in spite of everything, Ari Onassis was one of the most attractive men in the world. A genius? Make it three-fifths genius and two-fifths sheer fudge.

The Treasured Kitchen Tools of Japanese Chefs and Housewives!

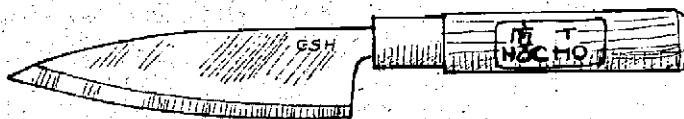

YANAGIBA 12½"

SASHIMI 13½"

DEBA 12"

NAKIRI 10½"

SET OF 4 ONLY $9.98

The design of these fine Hocho Knives has been perfected over centuries!

Imagine yourself in a fine Tokyo restaurant, privileged to watch a master chef at work. His Yanagiba (chopping/slicing) knife is a shining blur in his practiced hands as he reduces a carrot to a pile of skinny matchsticks in seconds! With his Deba (butcher style) cleaver he quarters a whole chicken in a few quick strokes, then deftly bones it with the Nakiri (utility knife) and slices the raw breast into paper thin shreds with Sashimi (the long, blunt ended meat slicer-carver).

To a Japanese chef, his Hocho knives are treasured possessions.

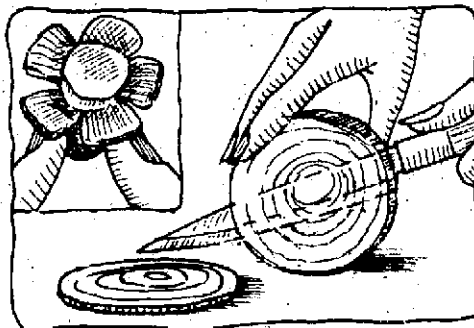

The essential tools of his profession! They must be the sharpest, the best balanced, the highest quality — for without them, great Oriental cooking is impossible. Whether the meal is prepared by a kimono-clad housewife or a chef in Western dress, the real secret — and 75% of the kitchen time — is in the preparation of food with Hocho knives — in bite sized chunks, strips, shreds, slivers, and paper-thin slices before it is cooked. This allows the meal to cook quickly and insures every ingredient will be tasty without being overdone.

Do you wonder then, that the design and balance of these legendary Hocho Knives has taken centuries to perfect? Do you wonder that sets of Hocho Knives are handed down from one generation to the next?

With the Sashimi Carver, you'll find it easy to slice meat, even slices of ham or beef like a professional — even tissue-paper-thin, if you wish. The squared tip makes it ideal for serving each slice as you carve.

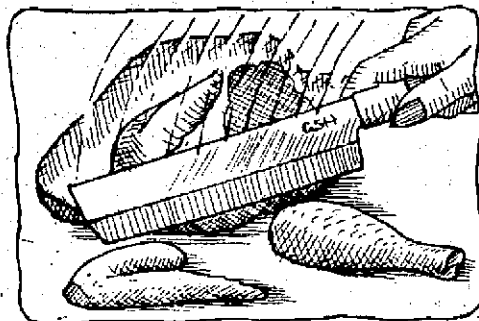

Now these heirloom instruments can be yours! Exported under special license by the Imperial Japanese Government, these exquisitely crafted tools are a joy to use in your kitchen. Everything about them is "Master Chef" quality — the blades are water-ground individually by hand, like the incredibly sharp swords of the Samurai warriors, from special stainless steel, so they're virtually indestructible and won't pit or rust. Note the special edge which (unlike many ordinary knives) is beveled only on one side, so the edge facing the meat you're carving slides straight by like a razor, instead of being forced through like a wedge.

With Yanagiba, the chopper-slicer, you can shave a water chestnut into crisp, wafer-thin slices or create a rose from a radish. And you can slice an onion so thin you can literally see through the slices!

Nakiri, the utility knife, is so versatile with its big blade tapering to a point that you'll use it constantly in place of several knives you used to use — to do everything from mince parsley to cube meat for a stew.

And Deba, the cleaver, is simply incredible. You'll sever a 4 pound fish head with a single stroke. You can quarter a tough-skinned winter squash for steaming as easily as an apple. And you can dismember a turkey carcass with ease in a few seconds! Use it to crack a veal knuckle or a lobster claw.

INCREDIBLE 10-YEAR GUARANTEE

One more interesting fact about these fantastic Hocho Knives, they're dishwasher safe, and the beautiful magnolia wood handles darken with use and actually mold to your hand! They're made to last a lifetime of sharpening and daily use in Japanese kitchens and to pass on to the next generation! So we're glad to guarantee them unconditionally for 10 years, and replace them free, or refund your money, except for postage, if you're disappointed for any reason!

How Nature Fights Cholesterol Clogged Arteries Blood Pressure Dangers

Scientists Discover Body's Natural Defenses Against 3 Big Killers

By E. L. Robinson

Did you know that Nature blessed your arteries with a self-cleaning system? That natural forces war against lifeless matter forcing it out of your body? Recently, Medical Scientists were shocked to discover that scores of so-called "healthful" foods can interrupt nature's wonderful defense mechanisms . . . that those "good-for-you" foods actually contain substances that could cause dangerous cholesterol sludge. Doctors warn that this scummy, lifeless matter may choke arteries, hamper blood flow, and damage the heart. Right now, millions are suffering from cholesterol-clogged arteries. Yet they don't even realize it! What a pity! If they only knew about the PROTEIDE-PLUS diet, their arteries would tend to clear themselves!

As far back as 1950, medical scientists began extensive, searching investigations into the role of foods in cholesterol build-up. Thousands of victims of strokes and heart attacks were diagnosed, interviewed and carefully studied. Over 800 basic foods were analyzed. Close to 5000 laboratory tests and even autopsies were performed. From this mountain of world-wide research came startling new discoveries. Now-at-last the missing link between cholesterol, high blood pressure and heart trouble had been found. And most significant of all, it had been proven beyond doubt, that a wholesome PROTEIDE-PLUS diet was absolutely necessary to reduce cholesterol sludge in the arteries.

Now scientists know that certain foods containing cholesterol and saturated fats are not necessarily harmful correctly prepared. But when processed incorrectly, they become downright dangerous to the body. They know that cholesterol scum can become hardened like chalky soap powder, sticking onto artery walls. With passing time, it may choke the arteries, ending with crippling disease.

That's why it's so essential to use the wholesome PROTEIDE-PLUS diet of the right foods. Prepared properly, these delicious, truly healthful foods avoid burdening the blood circulatory system. Your arteries are helped to clear themselves. It's all so simple when you know the facts.

Safe and Simple Home Method helps men & women of all ages

Now there is a safe, unbelievably easy plan that you can use at home—and it really works—whether you're 25 or 75.

This plan involves no drugs, crazy diets or special treatments. It's yours to use without a penny's extra cost. Yet it brings the blessings of more health to your entire family. You'll all eat meals that taste wonderful. Yet these PROTEIDE-PLUS meals are made with economical, every-day foods sold in your local supermarket. And they're amazingly fast and easy to cook!

A Search for the Real Onassis

who knew him best invariably used the word "genius." Andreas Lemos, a ship-owner and historian who lives in Athens, told me about Onassis' revolutionary innovations in the shipping business—for example, financing ships with other people's money. He would obtain a long-term charter from an oil company for a not-yet-built supertanker and then use the charter as collateral to finance the building of the tanker. He also pioneered the idea of registering his ships under flags of convenience to avoid taxes and government regulations.

But it was Onassis' ability to bend men or women to his will that most impressed those who knew him. "He had such a strong presence and he could talk brilliantly on any subject," said a Greek woman who was close to the family. "He could convince you of anything."

Tina Livanos

Jacqueline Onassis

Maria Callas

Women were always drawn to this complicated man—certainly not by his physical appearance. And his wealth wasn't the whole answer either, for he broke a number of hearts before he was rich. Even after he made his millions, there were many men as wealthy as Onassis who could not captivate a Maria Callas or a Jacqueline Kennedy.

"He had a great gift, a real genius, for charming people," Ingeborg Dedichen told me. "He could sit down at a table with a woman and know instantly what she wanted him to be and to say."

Onassis would set about stalking a woman who interested him with the same single-minded persistence that he applied to cornering a lucrative shipping deal. He could be the most attentive and generous suitor in the world—a quality which appealed to young Tina Onassis, whose father, Stavros Livanos, was famous for his penny-pinching ways. Onassis courted the 16-year-old girl with jewelry inscribed T.I.L.Y. (for "Tina, I love you") and after their marriage showered her with expensive presents.

To Maria Callas, Onassis showed a will as strong as her own. He charmed the fiery-tempered diva to the point where she gave up her career for the ten years she spent with him.

For Jacqueline Kennedy, Onassis revealed another facet of his chameleon-like personality. To her he was all attentive, comforting and protective. According to a woman who was friends with both of them, "He managed to make her feel totally secure and pampered, as if she were the only woman in the world. And this is what Jackie needs."

In a word, Onassis could be anything to any woman, and that gift outweighs wealth, looks or sexual prowess.

Like the ancient Greek hero Ulysses, and many Greeks after him, Onassis was torn between love of home and family and the need to roam the world at will. According to Gratsos, who knew him from the time he was 24, "He was a wonderful family man. He loved his children more than anyone I've ever known. But he wasn't meant to be married; he was born to be a bachelor. He was a man who moves, who takes nothing and goes when he feels like it. To such a man, every woman he becomes involved with eventually becomes a burden."

Even Jacqueline Onassis found this to be true according to a woman friend of hers. She told me about riding with Onassis and his wife in Athens one day when Onassis suddenly, without explanation, told the driver to stop and let him out. While Jackie stared after him in surprise, Onassis continued on foot, staring into windows, greeting passers-by and generally enjoying his freedom.

As he grew older, Onassis began to think of his empire as a monument to his name. His son Alexander was the heir to the throne and he would, in Greek fashion, name his first son Aristotle, thus perpetuating the line through eternity. That's why Alexander's death was the greatest tragedy that could befall Onassis. "After his son died, he lost his will to live," said Gratsos. "He worked harder in order to forget, but the loss of his son crippled him."

Onassis was a student of all things Greek, especially classical Greek literature. He must have reflected ruefully, as he slowly lost his long battle with myasthenia gravis, on what became of all the Greek heroes who aspired to immortality. Immortality belonged only to the gods. Whenever a woman was rash enough to seek it for himself, he was inevitably struck down for his hubris, or pride. Like his hero Ulysses, Onassis had had quite a journey—a trip which had included the greatest success, power and drama the world can give. But he also had been guilty of the overreaching pride—the hubris—that has always been the downfall of man. No doubt Onassis realized near the end that he had climbed too far toward

Scientists Discover Body's Natural Defenses Against 3 Big Killers

By E. L. Robinson

Did you know that Nature blessed your arteries with a self-cleaning system? That natural forces war against lifeless matter forcing it out of your body? Recently, Medical Scientists were shocked to discover that scores of so-called "healthful" foods can interrupt nature's wonderful defense mechanisms . . . that those "good-for-you" foods actually contain substances that could cause dangerous cholesterol sludge. Doctors warn that this scummy, lifeless matter may choke arteries, hamper blood flow, and damage the heart. Right now, millions are suffering from cholesterol-clogged arteries. Yet they don't even realize it! What a pity! If they only knew about the PROTEIDE-PLUS diet, their arteries would tend to clear themselves!

As far back as 1950, medical scientists began extensive, searching investigations into the role of foods in cholesterol build-up. Thousands of victims of strokes and heart attacks were diagnosed, interviewed and carefully studied. Over 800 basic foods were analyzed. Close to 5000 laboratory tests and even autopsies were performed. From this mountain of world-wide research came startling new discoveries. Now-at-last the missing link between cholesterol, high blood pressure and heart trouble had been found. And most significant of all, it had been proven beyond doubt, that a wholesome PROTEIDE-PLUS diet was absolutely necessary to reduce cholesterol sludge in the arteries.

Now scientists know that certain foods containing cholesterol and saturated fats are not necessarily harmful correctly prepared. But when processed incorrectly, they become downright dangerous to the body. They know that cholesterol scum can become hardened like chalky soap powder, sticking onto artery walls. With passing time, it may choke the arteries, ending with crippling disease.

That's why it's so essential to use the wholesome PROTEIDE-PLUS diet of the right foods. Prepared properly, these delicious, truly healthful foods avoid burdening the blood circulatory system. Your arteries are helped to clear themselves. It's all so simple when you know the facts.

Safe and Simple Home Method helps men & women of all ages

Now there is a safe, unbelievably easy plan that you can use at home—and it really works—whether you're 25 or 75.

This plan involves no drugs, crazy diets or special treatments. It's yours to use without a penny's extra cost. Yet it brings the blessings of more health to your entire family. You'll all eat meals that taste wonderful. Yet these PROTEIDE-PLUS meals are made with economical, every-day foods sold in your local supermarket. And they're amazingly fast and easy to cook!

Some day everybody will adopt this simple, yet wonderful PROTEIDE-PLUS method. But why wait? Benefit from these great discoveries now—instead of in ten years. The new, 1976 edition of the famous Astor Scott Report gives you all the facts in plain English. So simple—even a schoolboy can understand it! Entitled "Cholesterol — The Invisible Killer", this fearless book dares tell it like it is about cholesterol. Pulls no punches on regular or processed foods, blocked arteries, etc.

Yes! You can trust this great report. It explains clearly and simply how to bring down dangerous cholesterol levels . . . how to reduce high blood pressure . . . how nature tends to clear out arteries automatically. You receive real inside facts on angina, ear noises, dizziness, colitis, stomach problems, poor blood circulation. Explains the significance of those strange, yellow lumps inside the eyelids.

This bold book tells you which foods to avoid at your local market . . . which foods to pick for better health . . . the effect of the PROTEIDE-PLUS diet on your complexion and body. You also learn of tasty, satisfying meals that are prepared quickly—without fuss or hard work in the kitchen.

A Search for the Real Onassis

who knew him best invariably used the word "genius." Andreas Lemos, a ship-owner and historian who lives in Athens, told me about Onassis' revolutionary innovations in the shipping business—for example, financing ships with other people's money. He would obtain a long-term charter from an oil company for a not-yet-built supertanker and then use the charter as collateral to finance the building of the tanker. He also pioneered the idea of registering his ships under flags of convenience to avoid taxes and government regulations.

But it was Onassis' ability to bend men or women to his will that most impressed those who knew him. "He had such a strong presence and he could talk brilliantly on any subject," said a Greek woman who was close to the family. "He could convince you of anything."

Wide World

Women were always drawn to this complicated man—certainly not by his physical appearance. And his wealth wasn't the whole answer either, for he broke a number of hearts before he was rich. Even after he made his millions, there were many men as wealthy as Onassis who could not captivate a Maria Callas or a Jacqueline Kennedy.

"He had a great gift, a real genius, for charming people," Ingeborg Dedichen told me. "He could sit down at a table with a woman and know instantly what she wanted him to be and to say."

Onassis would set about stalking a woman who interested him with the same single-minded persistence that he applied to cornering a lucrative shipping deal. Since long before the dawn of recorded history, peoples have rallied to the flags of kings, empires, and nations.

In America — for perhaps the first time — flags were banners of the People themselves. Symbols of their hopes, aspirations, and ideals. With Independence, those flags became the emblems of thirteen Independent Sovereign States, deriving their powers from the consent of the people themselves. The perfect embodiment of independent spirit, traditions, determination, and sense of destiny which the Declaration of Independence proclaimed.

History remembers, for instance, that Virginia's Flag, which shows Virtue with her foot on Tyranny, was inspired in 1776 by George Mason's suggestion that his State's motto should be a defiant Sic semper tyrannis (thus always to tyrants). And that New Jersey's buff flag recalls the color chosen in 1779 by George Washington for the uniforms of New Jersey's regiments fighting for Independence.

Now, two centuries later, the thirteen flags have grown to fifty. Each intimately woven from the fabric of America's proud history.

An unprecedented event

It is fitting that as a part of the Nation's Bicentennial Celebration, the United States Postal Service will issue on February 23, 1976, an unprecedented series of fifty different Official Commemorative stamps portraying The Flags of the Fifty States. This will be the first such series to honor all fifty state flags, and like all firsts; certain to command the special attention of collectors everywhere.

Available to you: the First Editions

The assembled Governors of all fifty States and other leading citizens will gather in the Nation's Capital on February 23, to inaugurate the new stamps. At special ceremonies, first editions of the new stamps... First Day Covers... will be officially certified by the coveted, one-day-only, First Day of Issue postmark of our National Capital's Post Office. These will be but a small fraction of the total number of stamps eventually printed and available to the general public.

Appropriately, Fleetwood, America's oldest and largest purveyor of First Day Covers, will issue The Flags of the Fifty States in one complete collection of fifty Official First Day Covers. The first fifty collections have been reserved for the Archives of each of the fifty States. Identical collections are also available now to private citizens on an advance reservation basis.

A remarkable collection

As befits such a series, each will be extraordinary in every respect.

The individual cachets will portray one great citizen from each State who, under an Act of Congress, has been honored in the National Statuary Hall of the United States Capitol in Washington. These are men and women "illustrious for their historic renown or for distinguished civic or military services" to their State and Nation. They are the proud sons and daughters who have given substance to the vision of our Declaration of Independence.

A deluxe collector's album included

Collectors will also receive, without additional cost, a handsomely bound collector's album, with protective dustcase. To enhance the historical and educational value of this collection, an authoritative reference guide will be provided with biographies of the citizens honored on the cachets. And the fascinating history and significance of each state flag.

A single, genuinely limited, edition

The Flags of the Fifty States will be issued only once — on the precise First Day of Issue, and only as a complete collection. The distinctive postmark will certify to you that it can never be issued again. The original issue price for the complete collection is $70, and you may pay for it in its entirety now, charge it to your MasterCard or BankAmericard Charge account, or pay for it on a convenient installment program.

A collection of timeless significance

The Flags of the Fifty States deserve an honored place in your home. As constant reminders of the great and unique contributions which each of the States have made to the Nation born two hundred years ago this July 4th. And as a legacy which will continue to inspire you, your children, and their children for generations to come.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Is it true that your father was a riverboat captain on the Mississippi and that you learned to play the guitar sitting in the pilot's house, or is this just a publicity story?

TWITTY: It's true. From the time I was five until I was 21 I spent a lot of time on Dad's ferryboat.

FW: Ferryboat?

TWITTY: Yes, we went from the Arkansas side to the Mississippi side. Once in a while, we'd go up and down the river to turn on the channel lights.

FW: Did you work on the ferry or just play the guitar and sing?

TWITTY: I sure didn't do much work when I was five, but later, I worked as a deck hand. I earned my keep.

FW: You were a big hit as a rock-and-roll singer. What made you switch to country-western music?

TWITTY: I wanted to do country-western music ever since I got out of the Army in 1956, but didn't for two reasons: First of all, I did not think I could compete with people like Roy Acuff, Red Foley, Bill Monroe and all those country-western heroes. Secondly, it was a matter of age. I was only 23 then. In my opinion, that wasn't old enough to sing country-western. You have to know what it means to feel sad, to be lied to, cheated to—even do some cheating yourself—before you can sing those emotions from the heart.

FW: Why do country-western songs invariably deal with cheating and other depressing subjects?

The story goes that when a young man named Harold Lloyd Jenkins first tried to break into the music business, he was advised that he should not use the name Harold Lloyd because of Harold Lloyd, the movie comic. His manager thought the name "Conway Twitty" would be different. They chose it from a map showing Conway, Arkansas, and Twitty, Texas.

That was many years, three movies and millions of records ago. Since then, Conway Twitty has successfully made the jump from rock and roll to country-western superstardom. Yet when he walked into the Sheraton Universal Coffee Shop recently, I had a hard time recognizing him. Straight-laced, middle-

FW: And he kept pouring oil into it?

TWITTY: Somebody told us about something called Motor Cure that you pour into the crankcase. It's supposed to fill in all the cracks. Well, we used it. My brother drove that car for another 100,000 miles and never poured any more oil into it.

FW: Didn't you want to become a minister at one time?

TWITTY: Yes, when I was 15, I wanted to do something worthwhile. Like becoming a doctor, a veterinarian or, most of all, a minister. I preached the Bible for two and a half years. By the time I was 17, I began to see things differently. I found out that the church deacons I had listened to were cheating people. It really threw me. A 100-percent shock!

of that time's been good. We've got four kids—two boys and two girls. But when you're married as long as I've been, once every seven years or so something happens. You run into someone else. An incident that stands out in your memory. But in-between, you forget. You think of the baseball games and the wiener roasts and all the good times together.

FW: And yet country-western singers seem to stay married a lot longer than other people in show business. How do you explain that?

TWITTY: I can only speak for myself. I don't have the same lifestyle that a lot of other stars have. I enjoy the "down home" type of living—reading, fishing, doing things with my kids—not going to big parties. And of course I'm on the road about 200 days a year. Sometimes this has been hard on my wife. Recently, she decided she needed some other interests, so she's been going to college, taking home economics.

FW: In recent months, country-western songs have become sexier. How do you explain that?

TWITTY: There has always been reference to sex. But it's true, it has become more outspoken. Just as movies are. You didn't have things on the screen ten years ago that you see in R- and X-rated movies today.

FW: Have there been any especially sad events in your life?

TWITTY: I suppose the one that hit me hardest was back in 1969 when my dad passed away. I was with him.

FW: Did you compose a song about it?

TWITTY: No. I honestly don't know if I could.

FW: Did you ever want to do anything except become a singer?

TWITTY: When I got out of high school, I had an offer to sign with the Philadelphia Phillies. That was back in the early fifties. I didn't want to accept until I had enough money to buy a car so I could get around. So I went to Chicago and worked for the International Harvester Company until I had enough money to buy a 1948 Buick. It must be about 350 miles from Chicago to Mississippi and I used 14 quarts of oil to get back. When I got home, my mother told me that I had a draft notice. So I gave the car to my brother.

"At one time, the 'Grand Ole Opry' was the best exporter of country-western music. Today, there are 6,000 stations broadcasting country-western music, so why should I obligate myself for 40 bucks a night?"

I simply walked away from any idea of getting into the ministry and religion.

FW: Do you still feel that way?

TWITTY: No, today I understand that nothing is 100 percent. Everybody has some good and some bad in him.

FW: How come you appeared in the "Grand Ole Opry" only once?

TWITTY: It's a matter of economics. At one time, the "Grand Ole Opry" was the best exporter of country-western songs. Today there are 6,000 stations broadcasting country-western music, so why should I obligate myself for 40 bucks a night? I simply can't afford it.

FW: What about the future?

TWITTY: I have been on the road almost 18 years now; I don't think I can go another 18. That's why I want to get into the management business, to begin taking on other people.

FW: Are you a good businessman?

TWITTY: Some things work, some things don't. I spent a dozen years promoting the Twitty Burger.

FW: What's a Twitty Burger?

TWITTY: My version of a hamburger. It took 12 years and an awful lot of money out of my life. That's when I decided to stick to what I know. And it isn't Twitty Burgers. It's country-western music.

New York, N.Y. (Special—All over America, many grateful arthritic sufferers are today singing the praises of EXOCAINE.® And no wonder! For this different-kind-of-medicated rub not only reduces painful joint inflammation (like other rubs); but EXOCAINE is the only one that contains an anesthetic to temporarily desensitize and deaden nerve endings that transmit arthritic pain.

What Is Arthritis?

To help you understand the way EXOCAINE works, you should know that arthritis means "inflammation of the joints"... inflammation that can give you an aching back, stiff neck, sore knees, painful elbows, hands, or fingers; that can interfere with your work, your sleep, your enjoyment of life.

There are over 150 different kinds of arthritis and rheumatism! That's why, only a doctor should diagnose your problems and prescribe your medications. Usually they recommend analgesic tablets. But, for more relief than you can get from aspirin alone, many physicians also suggest rubbing in EXOCAINE MEDICATED RUB—where it hurts.

Great News!

Until recently, rubs contained only analgesics to help reduce arthritic joint inflammation. But now, EXOCAINE does more! That's because EXOCAINE not only reduces joint inflammation but also contains an extra ingredient... a fast-acting anesthetic to temporarily deaden and stop the transitory aches and pains of arthritis and rheumatism.

Your first trial should convince you that you've never used anything like pain-deadening EXOCAINE! Today, get this remarkable medicated rub at any drug counter; or take advantage of our FREE friend-winning introductory offer! Mail coupon—NOW!

WHAT GRATEFUL USERS SAY...

What Really Makes People "Lucky at Love"?

True or False? Seeking the ideal mate isn't hard if you go about it correctly. (See number 3.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Not how good-looking you are, but how satisfied you are with the way you look, determines the happiness of your love life.
2. Everybody loves somebody.
3. Seeking the ideal mate isn't hard if you go about it correctly.
4. Women have a more loving attitude toward their mates than do men.

ANSWERS

1. True. If you're not happy with the way you look, it's going to be more difficult for you to achieve romantic happiness. Psychological studies at McGill University confirm the findings of other investigations which show that men and women who are most satisfied with the way they look are also the most satisfied with their love relationships.

2. False. Dr. Raymond F. Gale, Professor of Psychology at Ball State University, provides a personality profile of the unloving individual in his treatise "Who Are You?" His studies show that this type of person "is a 'cold fish,' so to speak—insensitive to the feelings of others, yet extremely sensitive himself. He does not understand love—the one thing he craves and needs most. Because there are few others who understand or appreciate his unloving behavior, he is unlikely to receive the affection he needs." Also, a Veterans Administration study of men who manipulate women for romantic purposes yielded significant findings. This type of man, who cloaks his insincerity with smooth talk and false pretenses, was found to be incapable of love and narcissistic (he finds it hard to pass a mirror without at least one admiring glance). And he relates to women only superficially and with contempt.

3. False. The search for an ideal mate may not be exactly like finding a needle in a haystack, but that simile will do until another one comes along. As psychologist Richard Centers points out in his excellent monograph on "Sexual Attraction and Love," "People do not have 'the world to choose from' in seeking a mate or love partner. Their circles of acquaintances are quite limited and their contacts are few." He observes further that the type of person whose personality and general attributes mesh harmoniously with yours may be in short supply—and this might require a compromise. So, unless you're lucky, the search isn't likely to be easy. But whatever the case, no quest is more worthwhile or capable of paying richer dividends.

4. True—as evidenced by a team of University of Toronto psychologists whose studies showed that women express stronger affection, trust and admiration for their romantic partners than men do; that they are more socially sensitive, emotionally responsive and more receptive to love in the truly romantic sense.

CHRIS McCARRON Horse Racing's Brightest New Superstar

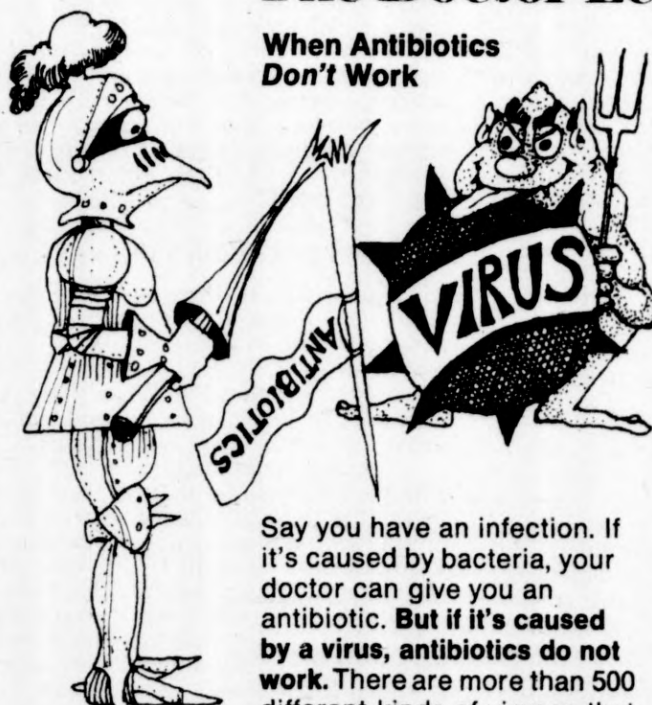

As a child growing up in Boston, red-haired Chris McCarron dreamed of becoming a hockey player for his beloved Boston Bruins. But when he reached 5-3 and stopped growing, it was obvious that he would have to follow the example of his older brother Gregg and become a jockey. His success in racing has been phenomenal. At the age of 19, he set a new world record by riding a total of 546 winners in a year. The incredible aspect to this record is that young Chris set it while still an apprentice jockey. He was an exercise boy at the Laurel Race Track in Maryland until he was allowed to ride his first race in January 1974. He finished last in that race but showed enough potential to convince trainer Odie Clelland to give him other mounts. He won his first race 16 days later and after that, just kept winning and winning. By bizarre coincidence, Chris beat out his own brother to win the race that set the new record. It was a close duel down the stretch with Chris's horse edging in front just at the finish. Chris's father, Herbert, was at Laurel that day. "I didn't know what to do, so I just screamed for both of them to finish in a dead heat," he recalls. "The way it turned out, I'm terribly happy for Chris, and Gregg is happy for him, too..." Chris's rise to racing stardom has made a few changes in his lifestyle. As an exercise boy, he lived in a tiny room in the area of the stables at Laurel. Now he lives with friends in a well-kept garden apartment and has replaced his old car with a new sports car. But he's not indulging himself otherwise, and his mother is acting as trustee for his savings. "There's always a chance this could end tomorrow," the 108-pound jockey says. "The first time my brother sat on a race horse, he was thrown and kicked and nearly lost his sight in one eye. I've been thrown off horses a couple of times, and although nothing serious happened, there's always the danger in this sport of suffering permanent injury." —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

When Antibiotics Don't Work

Say you have an infection. If it's caused by bacteria, your doctor can give you an antibiotic. But if it's caused by a virus, antibiotics do not work. There are more than 500 different kinds of viruses that can cause trouble in man. About 90 percent of respiratory infections are virus-induced. And we are continuously finding that other illnesses are due to viruses. How does a doctor know for sure that he is dealing with a virus? First, he examines the patient and considers the patient's complaint. This usually gives him a clue. If he wants to be absolutely certain, he may order lab tests. But since it takes almost five days to grow a virus in a laboratory, then another five days to identify it, lab tests are usually ordered only when the infection seems more serious or persistent. The protection against virus infections is a vaccine. It stimulates antibody protection, hence increasing body resistance. There are vaccines against smallpox, flu, polio, etc. What about treatment? There are certain virus killers that are used against more serious virus infections, but they are rather toxic. A new virus killer called "interferon" has far less potential for toxicity, but it is not yet available, and studies are still being made. —Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

What in the World!

BOB COUSY
Chasing the Dream

Bob Cousy, the ex-Boston Celtics superstar, speaks out: "Winning at Any Cost" may well be the chapter heading when future historians tell the story of the American society of our time. Success. Winning. They are words stitched into the national fabric along with the Stars and Stripes. Growing up during World War II, I remember learning early that America had never lost a war. . . . And years later we were ridiculing any 'no-win' policy in Vietnam. . . . Then came Watergate. Again, men of my generation showed they would do anything to succeed. I'd walk over my grandmother to win an election, Charles Colson said. The operative words were 'Do what has to be done, but don't get caught.' We had come to a time and place in history where the White House itself offered the oldest of apologies for wrongdoing: the end justifies the means. Re-electing Richard Nixon was good for this country and its people; hence, any means justified that end. Which of us hasn't used that same excuse? If I would run over someone in a casual game of basketball, could I blame Charles Colson for his statement? The pressure is always there for most of us. Win or be fired, the coach is told. Sell the product or be gone, the salesman is told. 'Winning isn't everything,' Vince Lombardi told us, 'it's the only thing.' And he was right." From "The Killer Instinct," by Bob Cousy with John Devaney (Random House, $7.95).

Film director Sydney Pollack ("The Way We Were," "Three Days of the Condor") told FAMILY WEEKLY about

the hardest part of his job: "It's what happens after a picture is finished that's difficult for me. I have to go out and sell the picture over TV, radio and to the press. After a while, I get sick of hearing myself talk. I feel cheap. It's not a good thing for a grown man to do! But I know I have to do this publicity work. A director invests a year of his life in making a movie, (four months of preparation, three months of shooting and five months of editing). Actors have it a lot easier—they can make a couple of movies a year if they're in demand, and they don't have to sell themselves afterwards. If you're a star, people want to worship you, be like you or be frustrated because they can't get near you. Directors just don't have that kind of appeal or influence over the masses."

JEANNIE AND JOHNNY MORRIS
From Russia, with mixed emotions

A couple of TV sportscasters (who happen to be married to each other), left their jobs last year and took off with their four kids for a year of foreign adventure, equipped with six suitcases and a van ("The Blue Beast"). Which country intrigued them the most? Jeannie Morris told FAMILY WEEKLY: "Russia was the most memorable, although certainly not the most enjoyable. The Intourist Bureau programs your visit so that you see only what it wants you to see and stay where you are told to stay. We found the female road gangs, the huge military presence and tired peasant faces very depressing. Also, the alcoholism rate is staggering and the Russians' diet seems to consist of sour cream and onions on every dish. But we were impressed as well. The people have an inner resiliency and were excited to meet us because they wanted to hear about life in America. We saw much evidence of striving for material improvement, both by the government and individuals, legions of whom were small-scale capitalists."

White House itself offered the oldest of apologies for wrongdoing: the end justifies the means. Re-electing Richard Nixon was good for this country and its people; hence, any means justified that end. Which of us hasn't used that same excuse? If I would run over someone in a casual game of basketball, could I blame Charles Colson for his statement? The pressure is always there for most of us. Win or be fired, the coach is told. Sell the product or be gone, the salesman is told. 'Winning isn't everything,' Vince Lombardi told us, 'it's the only thing.' And he was right." From "The Killer Instinct," by Bob Cousy with John Devaney (Random House, $7.95).

Film director Sydney Pollack ("The Way We Were," "Three Days of the Condor") told FAMILY WEEKLY about

the hardest part of his job: "It's what happens after a picture is finished that's difficult for me. I have to go out and sell the picture over TV, radio and to the press. After a while, I get sick of hearing myself talk. I feel cheap. It's not a good thing for a grown man to do! But I know I have to do this publicity work. A director invests a year of his life in making a movie (four months of preparation, three months of shooting and five months of editing). Actors have it a lot easier—they can make a couple of movies a year if they're in demand, and they don't have to sell themselves afterwards. If you're a star, people want to worship you, be like you or be frustrated because they can't get near you. Directors just don't have that kind of appeal or influence over the masses."

JEANNIE AND JOHNNY MORRIS
From Russia, with mixed emotions

A couple of TV sportscasters (who happen to be married to each other), left their jobs last year and took off with their four kids for a year of foreign adventure, equipped with six suitcases and a van ("The Blue Beast"). Which country intrigued them the most? Jeannie Morris told FAMILY WEEKLY: "Russia was the most memorable, although certainly not the most enjoyable. The Intourist Bureau programs your visit so that you see only what it wants you to see and stay where you are told to stay. We found the female road gangs, the huge military presence and tired peasant faces very depressing. Also, the alcoholism rate is staggering and the Russians' diet seems to consist of sour cream and onions on every dish. But we were impressed as well. The people have an inner resiliency and were excited to meet us because they wanted to hear about life in America. We saw much evidence of striving for material improvement, both by the government and individuals, legions of whom were small-scale capitalists."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

COMING CLEAN

"Clean your plate," my mother said,
And clean my plate I did.
For I was an obedient,
Intimidated kid.

"Clean your plate," my wife says now,

And though she's not a scold,
From habit (and from cowardice)
I do as I am told.

But I've begun to balk a bit
And look askance, doggone it,
At those, including me, whose plate
Has too much piled upon it.

My neighbor unexpectedly discovered an excellent method of teaching his children the value of money. He tried to borrow some from them.

A visit to Grandma's farm was very exciting for our four-year-old Terri. One morning she asked permission to go into the hen house to look for eggs. Grandma said she doubted there would be any at that time of day. "Yes, there is," Terri explained, "I heard a hen giggling!"
